SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—The giant dirigible Macon, destroyed by a sudden, unexpected disaster, lay at the bottom of the Pacific Ocean today, while 81 survivors were brought into San Francisco Bay by cruisers of the United States fleet. Only two members of the crew were missing.

The fate of every American-made dirigible the Navy has possessed overtook the Macon as it passed Sunnyvale base at sunset yesterday.

Two of its 12 helium gas cells suddenly burst as it sped through nearly air and fog 110 miles south of San Francisco.

The craft nosed abruptly skyward and the immediate efforts of Lieutenant-Commander Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the Macon and survivor of the Akron disaster, to balance the ship proved futile.

Under his orders the unmanageable dirigible landed, stern first, on the water 10 miles off Point Sur. It sank slowly, but the crew had taken to rubber lifeboats and all but two men were picked up by the cruisers Richmond, Colorado, and Cincinnati. The two missing men are Radoman Ernest Dailey of North Bend, Ore., and Florentino Ediquia, Filipino mess attendant. Dailey presumably leaped his back in a 15-foot leap from the ship before it landed. Ediquia was last seen aboard. Searching parties were ordered to leave Mare Island Naval Base this morning to search for their bodies.

Commander-in-Chief Admiral E. C. Brett wired the Navy today: "As far as can be determined at present, Macon sank into 250 fathoms. Contemplate no attempt to recover wreckage."

No excitement, he says.

"There wasn't any excitement on the Macon," M. C. Miller, aviation chief machinist's mate, of Minden, who is the Macon's engineer-in-command, said when the survivors were landed here today.

"There was no excitement so far as I remember when the Macon hit the water," he said. "We were all at our posts and doing our work, and those of us inside the airship had little knowledge of what was really going on."

The ship struck the water tail first and ran forward and as I recall we're 11 of us at last that did not use of the life rafts.

The raft had been inflated and passed through the doors of the life raft compartment. The life rafts are designed to hold only seven. But there were 11 of us on this raft and we got along very well.

We were on the raft about an hour before we were picked up by a boat from the cruiser Richmond. I didn't even get wet."

Inset: Navigator's Account.

Lieutenant-Commander Scott Peck, navigator of the Macon, said: "I believe the cause of the accident was a sharp gust of horizontal wind which broke off the upper fin."

"The ship took a sudden lurch last evening. Thirty second later I was informed the fin had been carried away. Without the fin, we were out of control although we did our best to head to sea and prevent a crash on land. Then a gas cell was ripped away. Another cell blew a second later. I gave Radio-Com. E. E. Dilley the last message.

DORIS DUKE, 'RICHEST
GIRL IN WORLD,' WEDS

Tobacco Heiress Marries James
H. R. Cromwell, New York Advertising Man.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Doris Duke, tobacco heiress and "richest girl in the world," was married this morning to James Henry Robert Cromwell, New York advertising man, at the bride's town house, 1 East Seventy-eighth street. They sailed at noon on the S. S. Conte di Savoia for a honeymoon in Italy and Egypt.

The ceremony, a civil one, was attended only by a few close friends and relatives including the mothers of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Duke and Mrs. E. T. Stuyvesant of Philadelphia, Supreme Court Justice Burton Jay Humphrey of Brooklyn, read the service.

The ship took a bow up inclination and rose, the commander said, with the elevator man apparently losing control.

It was said he received immediate telephone report from aft that the No. 1 cell was gone. All ballast and emergency fuel in the aft part of the ship was dropped. Gas was valved from the forward gas cell in an effort to regain control.

The inclination of the ship had reached 25 degrees and it ascended rapidly.

Inset: Engines Are Slowed.

"The engines were slowed immediately, the ship took the up angle," said Commander Wiley's statement. "In order to keep from ascending too high and to relieve the strain on the structure caused by the operation of the rudder and elevators at the high air speeds.

"I surmised that the structure was damaged over No. 1 gas cell in the locality of the fins and endeavored to relieve the strain on that part of the ship's structure. Reports were soon received that the ship's outer covering was gone over No. 1 and 2 gas cells, and although occasionally the inclination was reduced considerably, it could not be kept to a small angle.

descend from 4000 feet and even

"Meanwhile, the ship began to down to 3000 feet. I expected to get the ship under control with the engines and the one rudder that was reported functioning.

"From about 3000 feet down the ship descended at an average rate of 300 feet per minute, and in spite of dropping all ballast and endeavoring to drop airplanes from the airplane hangar, the descent continued. The angle of inclination which has gotten as slow as 10 degrees again increased as the stern hung down toward the water.

The text of the Russell substitute for the prevailing wage amendment follows:

"The President is authorized to fix the rates of wages of all persons compensated out of the funds appropriated by this joint resolution and may fix different rates for various types of work, which rates need not be uniform throughout the United States.

"In the event the President, or such official or agency of Government as he may select, shall determine after an investigation that the rate of wages paid is affecting adversely or is likely to decrease the prevailing rates of wages paid for any work of a similar nature in any city, town, village or other subdivision of the state in which the work is located or in the District of Columbia, the President, or the official or agency designated by him, shall immediately fix the rate of wages at an amount not less than the prevailing rate of wages paid for work of a similar nature in such locality.

"Any and all contracts which may be entered into under the authority contained in this resolution shall contain stipulations which will provide for the accomplishment of the purposes of this section."

The slim blond heiress, who is described by her mother as a "serious child," is 16 years younger than Cromwell.

Cromwell, the son of Oliver Eaton Cromwell and the former Eva Roberts, was divorced in Reno Sept. 28, 1928, from Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell, daughter of the late Horace Dodge, automobile manufacturer.

Cromwell, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is well known in amateur circles as a golfer, boxer and tennis player. He is also known as a writer and lecturer on economics. In 1932 at Palm Beach, Fla., he boxed three rounds with Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, and won.

"The ship took a sudden lurch last evening. Thirty second later I was informed the fin had been carried away. WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Admin-

Senate Appropriations Committee from lopping $2,000,000,000 off the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill, won a substitute for the prevailing wage amendment and eliminated the contract requirement clause.

The committee then authorized Chairman Glass to report the bill to the Senate after nearly three weeks of controversy and revision. This would permit the Senate to consider it tomorrow.

One Vote Majority.

An amendment by Senator Adams (Dem.), Colorado, to reduce the appropriation to $2,880,000,000 on the ground the Government could not stand the larger expenditure year after year, was rejected, 12 to 11, with five Democrats, including Glass, and six Republicans voting for it.

A substitute offered by Senator Russell (Dem.), Georgia, for the McCarran prevailing wage amendment was previously adopted, 10 to 9. This would authorize the President to fix the rates of wages at different rates for various types of work. If the proposed "security" wage of $50 a month was found to be affecting the private scale, the President would be required to fix a rate not less than the prevailing wage.

COURT DISMISSES SUIT OF WIFE AGAINST VALLEE

Former Fay Webb's Attempt to Increase $100-a-Week Allowance From Orchestra Leader Fails.

NO COERCION IN AGREEMENT PROVED

Her Counsel Moves to Disqualify Judge, Who Threatens Him With Contempt Citation.

The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee lost today in Supreme Court in her attempt to obtain more money from the income of her estranged husband, Rudy Vallee, the orchestra leader.

Justice Salvatore Cotillo ended the action by granting a motion by Vallee to dismiss the case. He ruled that Mrs. Vallee had not proved her allegations that the separation agreement with her husband had been made through coercion and under duress.

The financial clause of the agreement gives Mrs. Vallee $100 a week maintenance money.

Attorneys for Vallee had promised that if their motion was dismissed they would place in evidence photographs records of alleged conversations between Mrs. Vallee and Gary Cooper, adagio dancer, and find no evidence of duress or coercion employed to induce the plaintiff to enter into the separation agreement, said Justice Cotillo. His wife produced no proof of the coercion of her allowance. The wife to take the stand and prove the allegations, cast upon the good faith of her accuser.

Vallee was in court today, but his wife was not.

Justice Cotillo held no proof had been shown that Vallee had misrepresented his financial status to her, when the agreement was made. Nor did the Court find that Vallee was physically or mentally unfit at the time.

For Mrs. Vallee's contention she did not have legal advice she agreed to the separation contract made on April 5, 1933, Justice Cotillo pointed out that her lawyer, Clarence E. Webb, Santa Monica, Cal., Police Chief, was willing to protect her interests.

Heckler and gavel pounding continued to mark the proceedings today. When the court convened, Benjamin Hartstein, counsel for Mrs. Vallee, moved to disqualify Justice Cotillo from adjudicating the case.

Justice Cotillo objected vehemently. "You must be able to substantiate it under oath," he told Hartstein.

Hartstein said something about "discretion from the Court" and Justice Cotillo has disqualifying him, but he goes no further. Justice Cotillo urged him to make his move.

Hartstein was persuaded to make his motion, which was overruled. Hartstein asked Justice Cotillo if he could have an opportunity "to offer my case." The Justice told him he would accept any affidavit or sworn testimony. "But on this occasion," he added, "that Cohn (Benjamin Cohn, California attorney representing Mrs. Vallee) not be allowed to stay. Will you tell Mr. Cohn to leave the counsel table?" Cohn and Justice Cotillo had a bitter argument last week.

"I don't tell him," said Hartstein. Justice Cotillo then said to Cohn, "Get outside!" "I will have to abide by Your Honor's prerogative," Cohn replied.

Hartstein addressed the Court, "The Judge had offered to speak with Cohn."

"Take me stand," Justice Cotillo said. Hartstein, Hartstein was swayed.

Justice Cotillo questioned him:

"Do you know that I offered to engage in a fight of your knowledge?" "I was not present," Hartstein began, but was cut short by the Justice.

"After the ship was abandoned, it sank almost immediately. When the emergency call was sounded, the men were ordered to rush forward from the fan-tail. The breakup came about 6:45 p.m. The sea became very rough with long swells."

"Previously, we had encountered some mean weather near the Santa Barbara Channel, but we were never in any danger then."

"After we struck, the water was full of gasoline from the storage tanks. We had tossed out flares to enable rescuing ships to find us."

"Several small fires started when flames from the flares ignited oil from the motors. None of the men was burned, but many were badly nauseated from the fumes."

"The men in the stern faced an additional danger when the motors in the forward part of the ship started breaking loose and falling toward them."

Justice Cotillo granted an injunction on the petition of Vallee's legal restraining Mrs. Vallee from bringing suit to set aside the separation agreement anywhere else than in the court.

Hartstein announced he would appeal.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES UP FROM LAST JANUARY IN CITY

First Month in 1935 Shows 3.7 Pct. Increase Over Similar Period Year Ago.

Department store sales in St. Louis last month showed an increase of 3.7 per cent over January a year ago, but a drop of 48.7 per cent from last December, according to a preliminary report made public today by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

For the Eighth Federal Reserve District, comprising Arkansas, most of Missouri and parts of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Mississippi, sales last month increased 1.8 per cent over January 1934, and increased 53.8 per cent under last December. Three others of the eight largest cities in the district—Louisville, Ky.; Springfield, Mo., and El Dorado, Ark.—showed increases over a year ago. The other four—Memphis, Tenn.; Evansville, Ind., and Fort Smith and Little Rock, Ark.—showed decreases.

The greatest increase over January, 1934—15.8 per cent—was at El Dorado, which also showed the smallest decrease from December sales, 41.3 per cent. The most severe drop from sales a year ago was in Evansville, with 11.1 per cent.

OIL STATION ATTENDANT FINED FOR FALSE ROBBERY REPORT

Eldred Blackwell Assessed $50; Some of Money He Said Was Taken Is Found in Locker.

Eldred Blackwell, a 24-year-old former filling station attendant, 8376A Enright avenue, was fined $50 and costs today by Police Judge West when he pleaded guilty of making a false robbery report to police.

Judge West stayed the fine, observing that the attendant had been absented from his job and he considered he had been punished sufficiently.

Blackwell informed police last Sunday that two Negroes had held him up, taking his change carrier and $35. Police found some of the money in his locker and the change carrier in the station.

SKIPPER'S STORY

HOW MACON GOT OUT OF CONTROL

In his opening statement Assistant United States Attorney Morris declared that the Government would show that Giessenbier used the funds of investors without customers of the bank in 1931 to meet his obligations with brokerage houses through which he was speculating in the stock market. The defense reserved its opening statement.

CHECK NOT INDORSED

Donnell brought out that the check did not bear Giessenbier's indorsement. He asked if it was Eagon's practice to cash checks which were not indorsed.

"No, except checks like this," Eagon replied. "It was the practice in the bank to cash such checks for officers without indorsement."

Skipper of Macon Only Officer Saved in Previous Disaster.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Lieutenant-Commander Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the airship Macon, was the man who shouted the last command to the crew of the doomed Akron.

Wiley said the maneuvers with the fleet had been completed and the Macon started for its Sunnyvale base at 3 p.m. It was decided to enter the Santa Clara Valley at Watsonville if visibility permitted.

Visibility near Point Sur just before the trouble developed was somewhat better, said Wiley, and two divisions of heavy cruisers were observed in that locality. The Macon had decreased its altitude from 2700 feet to 1600 feet to pass under a rain squall and decreased again to 1250 feet to pass under another.

Macon Falls Into Pacific; Fleet Saves All But Two Men

for developments. There was no particular discussion as was awaited for the crash. The ship did not crackle when it struck the water."

"Dailey to me was the real hero of the accident. He got off the message. If he hadn't, it is quite possible we all might have been drowned as the fleet vessels would have been without knowledge of our whereabouts."

"We're All Safe."

Many of the men wore oddly assorted clothes and perched jauntily atop their heads were white caps.

"We're all safe," several of the men shouted.

The officers immediately entered a bus to be driven to Sunnyvale. Although some of them, whose wives were waiting, went in their own motor cars.

It required only 10 minutes for the four boatloads to land at the pier.

All of the men wore life vests, which are a part of their regular equipment. It appeared necessary to quickly climb the catwalks to prevent drowning. All the men are equipped with special knives, for such emergencies."

Craft Safe Immediately.

It was the third day to overtake great airships of the United States fleet. At the Akron crashed with a loss of 73 lives April 4, 1933, and the Shenandoah eight years earlier with a loss of 14 of its crew.

If the two missing men are not found, the Macon crash will bring to 359 lives lost in the 15 major dirigible crashes in the world in the last 23 years.

The remarkably small loss of life was attributed to naval discipline and the presence of about 30 fighting craft with which the Macon had maneuvered off the California coast for a day and a half.

Wiley's Story of Crash.

Wiley's story of the crash sent out from the rescue ship follows:

"While off Point Sur a course north, all engines suddenly stopped 63 knots, altitude 1250 feet, and squarely about 5:18 p.m., a carbon monoxide leak occurred in stern.

"As the descent began Wiley sent out his only S O S reporting the ship was 'failing.'

"Naval craft in the immediate vicinity headed at once for the Macon's position, and Admiral Reeves, commanding the fleet maneuvers, took charge of all air lines to direct the search.

"Thirty boats in the area, mostly fighting craft steaming for San Francisco Bay, where the Macon was a familiar sight, turned to its aid.

"All hands in the Mare Island Navy Yard in San Francisco Bay were ordered to stand by. The Red Cross directed nearby agencies to ready to lend aid. The Naval Hospital ship Relief was ordered to speed to the scene from Southern California.

"The ability of the Navy to mass so much aid immediately was impressive, but such ample help was not needed.

Six Coast Guard cutters were ordered to put out from various Callouts.

downward. (Navy accounts said the nose went upward as the lifting cables astern burst.) That was surprising. I'd never seen her act like that before.

"Then what looked like the top stabilizer broke off and plunged down, crazy-like. It ripped off about three-fourths of the top front canvas, leaving the bare frame. I happened to have my glasses trained on that one spot when the stabilizer broke loose.

"With her stern ripped the Macon started to rise and soon disappeared in the clouds. Before she disappeared, though, she turned west, then south, as if they were having a hard time steering her. She had been going north when the stabilizer broke.

"We didn't see her any more. We only saw many objects fall out of the clouds—ballast, I suppose."

Launching of Lifeboats.

Lieutenant Commander Rowland of the naval air base at Sunnyvale told the men in lifeboats on the dirigible when they were launched.

"The lifeboats are distributed about the dirigible just like life preservers are on an ocean-going ship," he said. "The rubber lifeboats can be quickly inflated with compressed gas with special tanks resembling a large fire extinguisher. When the lifeboats are inflated they are tossed overboard. This type of lifeboat will stay afloat indefinitely."

As the descent began Wiley sent out his only S O S reporting the ship was "failing."

STATE LOTTERY PLAN APPROVED IN COMMITTEE

Missouri House Group Fa vors Amendment to Con stitution to Clear Way for Lindhorst Proposal.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13.—

The House Committee on Consti tutional Amendments last night re ported out favorably five joint and concurrent resolutions proposing amendments to the State Constitu tion, including one by Representative

Will L. Lindhorst of St. Louis which would repeal the present consti tutional provision prohibiting lot teries.

Lindhorst's proposed amendment would sanction a state-wide lottery, the pro ceeds of which, after deduction of 44,000 prizes, would be used for old age pensions, unemployment relief and the cost of caring for invalid persons.

Lindhorst told the committee his plan called for giving the prize winners in the proposed lotteries "honorary" state jobs, carrying a graduated schedule of salaries, with no actual work required. He advocated the old age pension system, saying it was more humane and economical, and keeps the aged and dependent from losing faith in themselves.

Lindhorst discussed old age pension bills now pending before the Legislature in Jefferson City. He urged those favoring the pension to communicate their ideas to Gov. Park.

The committee killed a proposed amendment by Representative Browning of St. Clair County, providing for substitution of a one-House Legislature of 34 members, for the present two-House assembly of 184 members.

Other proposed amendments re ported favorably by the committee were as follows:

An amendment to the constitutional sec tion which now authorizes municipalities with organized fire departments to establish pension funds for disabled firemen, to permit the pensioning of any member of such a fire department. It was introduced by Representative L. P. Walsh of St. Louis.

Changing the present constitutional provision which prohibits sheriffs and coroners from being re-elected to succeed themselves, to permit sheriffs and coroners to be re-elected for a second four-year term. The resolution was introduced by Representative Shoup of Lewis County.

Amending the constitutional section which now requires certain county school funds to be invested, and only the income used for

Samuel Haskell's Vehicle Struck at Crossing in East St. Louis.

Samuel Haskellson, 33 years old, 2640 Burd avenue, was killed at 6 a.m. today when a bread truck he was driving was struck by a Pennsylvania freight train at the B street crossing in East St. Louis.

Haskellson was driving north on B street when his truck was hit by the end car in the train being pushed westward by a switcher engine. The truck was shoved across B street and crushed between two loading platforms of a freight house. About 15 feet of one of the platforms was torn away and the end car derailed. Bread was strewn along the track.

B street, the second street east of the Mississippi River, runs through the freight house district.
No watchman, light signal or gates protect the crossing. The switch tracks usually are lined with freight cars.

Haskellson was employed by the Weile-Boettler Bakery, 37 South
Vanderover avenue.

IT takes more than "just a salve" gestion when rubbed on the sore, aching spots.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly to this treatment, and with continued application, relief usually follows.

Ever better results than the old-

BUSINESS PROTEST AGAINST RISE IN STATE SALES TAX

About 1500 Merchants and Representatives of Other Lines Appear at Jefferson City.

By BOYD F. CARROLL, Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13.—A mass protest against any increase of one-half of 1 percent tax of the present State sales tax was presented to the Missouri Legislature this afternoon by nearly 1500 merchants and representatives of other business interests, who came here for a hearing before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The visitors, most of them wearing white badges bearing an inscription, "No Change in the Sales Tax," filled the House galleries, crowded the House aisles and side lounges and overflowed into the corridors outside the hall of the House.

About 300 of the visitors were from St. Louis, including 210 who made the trip on a special train.
The Kansas City delegation of merchants and other business men opposing increases of the tax totalled 256, most of whom came here on a special train.

The demonstration was the largest before the Missouri Legislature in many years, with the exception of the House Ways and Means Committee which appeared before the Legislature in 1931 to demand repeal of the Ralph sewer law.

The bills pending before the House Ways and Means Committee propose various increases in the sales tax, up to a levy of 2 per cent.
Gov. Park's administration bill would place the tax at 1 per cent, doubling the present rate. The Governor has said, however, that he would not oppose a 2 per cent tax, if part of the money was used to relieve local taxation.

BACKERS OF THE OPPosition.
The opposition demonstration today was organized chiefly by the Missouri Retailers' Association, with the co-operation of several other organizations, including the Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis, the Independent Retailers' Council of Greater St. Louis, the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, the Retail Grocers' Association and the Retail Coal Dealers of Kansas City. The Associated Industries of Missouri also is opposed to any increase in the tax.

Arguments in opposition to the proposed increases are being presented this afternoon and this evening by 10 speakers, including Fred M. Lee of Kansas City, president of the Missouri Retailers' Association; Charles E. Williams of St. Louis, representing the Missouri Retailers' Association; Walter Matthes of St. Louis, representing the Retail Florists of Missouri; William J. Fitzmaurice of St. Louis, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union;
Earl Turner of Springfield; Arthur
S. Werremeyer of St. Louis, president of the Independent Retailers' Council of Greater St. Louis; C. H.
Simpson of the Retail Coal
Dealers of Kansas City and George
G. Croner of the Retail Grocers' Association of Kansas City.

About 280 petitions protesting against any change in the sales tax were filed with the committee.
Werremeyer said the petitions carried about 60,000 signatures, obtained throughout the State.

After Jan. 1, 1936.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13.—
The House today unanimously passed a bill requiring all automobiles manufactured or assembled after Jan. 1, 1936, to be equipped with laminated safety glass.

The measure was introduced by Speaker Christy who urged its approbation as a safety measure and also pointed out that it would help business in his home town of Festus, which has a large plate glass factory.

MINING FIRM RECEIVER SOUGHT

Suit for a receiver for the Safety
First Mining Co., south of Belleville, which had a $10,000 fire loss Feb. 4, was filed at Belleville yesterday by James H. Ripley, owner of the land on which the company operates.

Ripley, who leased the coal rights to the company, says it owes him $3,000, and asks that insurance covering the fire be collected by the receiver and held for creditors.
Company officers declared $3,000 of its claim was still in litigation.

PAWNEE, Ok., Feb. 13.—Both defense and prosecution demands for a mistrial in the Phil Kennamer murder trial were denied in rapid succession by Judge Thurman Hurst today.

The defense had asked for a mistrial following the statement in court by Mrs. O. L. Harmon, a State witness, that she had been threatened with death if she testified.

After a conference the defense agreed to accept the State's apology for the witness and proceed with the trial. It was then Anderson asked for a mistrial, saying: "I will join with the defense in this case."

PREACHER'S SHOUT DISRUPTS COURT AS WILENTZ ENDS

Hauptmann Jury Does Not Hear Minister Say 'A Man Confessed That Crime to Me.'

SUMMARY OF PLEA BY THE PROSECUTOR

Attorney-General Declares the Baby Was Crushed Before It Was Taken From the Room.

By the Associated Press

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13.— Barely had Attorney-General David T. Wilentz spoken the last words of his closing plea to the jury in the Hauptmann trial yesterday than a spectator-preacher, perched on a window sill, cried out: "If your honor please—a man confessed in the day."

Afterward Hauptmann had nothing to say, but his wife said: "Oh, oh! I can't see why he says those things about Richard."

Demands Death Penalty.

Wilentz demanded that Hauptmann be put to death like a dangerous beast, and told the jury that a verdict of conviction with a recommendation of mercy would be "wifey wifey."

Only the electric chair, he cried, would "hawt out." Hauptmann's coldness—he is cold, yes, but he will be "hawt out" when he hears the switch.

He said that the murder of the Lindbergh baby would be "insignificant" as compared to the "crime" of freeing Hauptmann; that "every woman in her home would shudder again."

Wilentz contended, too, that Hauptmann crushed the baby into

"Perjury is a joke in this case," he cried. "They would swear to anything, anything to save Hauptmann."

Dr. John F. Condon's identification of Hauptmann as the ransom "John" was enough, in itself, to convict the carpenter of first-degree murder, Wilentz contended.

Never Asked Him a Word.

Saying Hauptmann was treated "entirely too well" after his arrest, he added scornfully:

"I never even walked in to ask him a word. . . . I wouldn't get close enough to him. . . . I wouldn't want to breathe the same air."

I feel itchy, I feel oozy. . . . I just couldn't stand being anywhere near him."

Wilentz contended, too, that Hauptmann crushed the baby into insensibility before he took the child from the nursery, that he used the chisel found near the house for this purpose.

Thus, he explained, the baby made no outcry—a point the defense had emphasized.

He said Hauptmann "committed downright and absolute perjury" when he testified that police after his arrest dictated the spelling of "signature" as in the ransom notes.

Addresses Col. Lindbergh.

Wilentz turned to Col. Lindbergh in closing to say: "I want you to know, Colonel, that we cannot return your baby. No king, no nation, or no country can. There is no question about that. We could try this case forever, we could go on for days and days—we couldn't do anything for Col. Lindbergh."

"But we could do one thing in this case. Let me tell you—this jury can, by its verdict, do one thing for the Colonel, for Anne, for the country—we can make the country a little bit more secure, we can make the children a little safer, we can make women a little happier."

This fellow has been the inspiration for the greatest series of the meanest crimes in the history of the world. . . . he said, "take the fellow you are going to kidnap, murder him, and they can't catch you. How can they catch you, because you haven't got him?" He taught them that and since that time this country has been cursed with the meanest and worst series of crimes it has ever experienced.

"If this jury will do its duty, we can translate Col. Lindbergh's loss and sorrow into some gain for civilization—to show that whether we catch these snakes, we can crush these snakes, we can crush these criminals, that society isn't so weak that we can't do what we want them. That's the job you can do."

"I know that civilization will have some little gain out of it. As difficult as it is, Col. Lindbergh will feel that the effort in this case has been worth while, notwithstanding his great loss. . . ."

The Minister's Outburst.

The cry of the minister from his window sill perch, came as Wilentz closed.

The court stenographer, the lawyers and Justice Trenchard heard no more, apparently, than his words, "If you Hon. please."

Those near him said he called out, "a man confessed that crime to me in my church."

An officer pulled the minister down from the sill, clapped a hand over his mouth, and hustled him out.

Edward J. Reilly, chief defense lawyer, told the court that the Rev. Mr. Burns was the brother of Robert Elliott Burns, former chain gang fugitive, and that he had "thrown him out" of his office when Burns came to him early in the case. Reilly also said he had State Troopers eject Burns from the courthouse the first day of the trial.

The Justice admonished the jury to disregard anything they might have heard. He rapped for order as the excited crowd milled in the courtroom after the jury had retired, ordered the deputies to clear the room and summoned counsel for a conference in his chambers. It was decided to let the clergyman go.

Told Story Last November.

The Rev. Mr. Burns first told his story at Fort Lee, Nov. 23, 1934, it was recalled today. He announced then that a man had come to his church on Palm Sunday of 1932 and "confided to me his part in a kidnapping crime."

Asked why he had not turned the man over to police, Burns said: "That was out of the question; he came to my church for protection."

The minister was at the trial soon after it opened six weeks ago and studied Hauptmann's face to determine in his own mind if he was the same man as the one who "confessed."

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State police, said that Mr. Burns came to the authorities some weeks ago and told them that Hauptmann was the man who had "confessed" to him. Earlier in the day the clergyman said that, although the man who came to his church "resembled Hauptmann," he was not as dark complexioned as the defendant.

The preacher was his brother's chief defender in the latter's successful flight to escape extradition from New Jersey to Georgia, where he twice escaped from chain gangs.

Reilly said to reporters "Wilentz offered one of the most powerful arguments I have ever heard in any courtroom, but the whole value of it was destroyed by the minister."

A Generous Combination Plate with Meat, for Only 8¢! Try it. Add your choice of a Fresh Vegetable and Dessert; Enjoy a Delicious, Balanced, Complete Meal for a

Think of it! No need to do without meat. Take the all priced 5¢. And a 5¢ or 6¢ salad or dessert with bread and butter. Yes, you can have all that good food, a complete, balanced meal for 20¢ to 25¢.

"How can you do it?" our customers ask. "Without cutting quality or reducing the size of portions, or a wholesale raising of prices?"

Because Forum policy is simply this: Few customers mean higher prices. Lots of customers make low prices possible. Our business increased nearly 1 million meals last year. And, we were able to increase operating efficiency to the highest point in our 23 years experience.

That's how we were able to absorb increased costs of over $400,000 in 1934. Food costs that jumped up 22% or $271,000. Payroll that increased 21.7% or $132,000. Total increased costs of 9¢ per meal, more than in 1933. Yet, we raised our prices only 1 9/10¢ per meal.

Yes, our usual invitation still stands. Try the Forum.
Then decide: (1) Where can you get as good food?
(2) Where can you get as much variety to select

OPEN DRAW BRIDGE WRECKS "FLORIDA SPECIAL," 20 HURT

New York-Miami Train Crashes on Span and Engine Goes Into Loxahatchee River.

By the Associated Press.

JUPITER, Fla., Feb. 13.—Twenty to 25 persons were injured, one apparently seriously, when the second section of the "Florida Special," New York-to-Miami train on the Florida East Coast Railway, ran into an open draw on a bridge across the Loxahatchee River, one-half mile from here, yesterday. The train carried more than 100 passengers.

The locomotive went into the river, the engineer and fireman leaping to safety with minor injuries. The tender hung between the bridge and the water. The baggage car and Pullman and a club car remained on the bridge, but were damaged by the sudden impact with the elevated draw.

Mrs. Jane Ogle, hostess on the club car at the extreme rear of the train, was taken to a hospital unconscious. Other injured passengers suffered from cuts, bruises and shock.

Injured in Hospitals.

The injured were taken to hospitals at Stuart, 20 miles north of here, and at West Palm Beach, the same distance south.

Engineer S. W. Turnipseed and Fireman Will Barton, the latter a Negro, leaped about 150 feet from the open draw. Two Negro cooks and a Negro waiter were scalded when a boiler exploded in the dining car.

Passengers were thrown from their seats, baggage toppled down on them and furniture in the recreation car hurled through the wide glass windows.

Luther Cook of Jupiter, bridge tender, said the first section of the train passed over the bridge. A small fishing smack operated by Edwin Seabrook of Jupiter signaled for Cook to open the draw so it could pass under the bridge. Cook said he did not expect the second section of the train so soon and thought he had plenty of time to allow the boat to pass.

As he raised the draw, Cook said he saw a signal flash indicating the second section of the train had passed a block about a mile up the track. He said it was impossible for him to close the bridge.

Cook said he climbed on the bridge to signal the train and as he saw it round a curve and run on the approach of the span, he leaped into the river and swam to shore.

The engineer and fireman had jumped a minute earlier.

Barton said as the train passed the signal block about a mile up the bridge the signal showed yellow or "caution." The train was slowed down to about 25 miles an hour, he said, and he and the engineer looked for the danger signal at the approach to the bridge. It was red or "danger," he said.

The engineer slowed the train to about 10 miles an hour but it could not be stopped in time to avoid hitting the upright draw. He and the engineer jumped when they the

Lieutenant-Colonel Frank M. Andrews to Head Corps as Brigadier-General.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The War Department formally announced the temporary promotion of Lieutenant-Colonel Frank M. Andrews to be a Brigadier-General in command of the recently organized General Headquarters Air Force. Gen. Andrews, now here organizing the force, will rank from March 1, when he will proceed to Langley Field, Va., force headquarters, to assume active command.

material by Mayor Crow's administration slate.

Other candidates for Commissioner polled the following vote:
John Joe Foley, 4728; Russell T.
Beebe, 4652; John D. Johns, 2237;
Jessie Blue, 228; Grover C. Borders,

Charles C. Kelley and William Z.
Lipe, also candidates for Mayor, received 544 and 186 votes, respectively.

Foley, a former city detective, and Russell T. Beebe, School Board member, who finished ninth and tenth in the race as candidates for Commissioner, gave Corrigan and Dr.
Wynn a close race for nomination.

Corrigan went ahead with a heavy vote in the Negro precincts, and finished with 982 more votes than Beebe. Only 286 votes separated Dr. Wynn, Foley and Beebe, when the tabulation was completed.

The eight men nominated for City Commissioner in a field of 30 candidates were: Herman Zierath, city clerk, 9911; Albert P. Lauman, commissioner of police, 9659; John

Mayor James T. Crow and John

Side Levee Board, were nominated for Mayor yesterday in the East St. Louis primary. The final election will be held April 2.

Crow received 14,298 votes and English 9544. The list of candidates for commissioner also were nominated.

The English slate, composed of 30 candidates, was 25,000, as compared with 20,000 in the 1931 primary. The total registration was 36,344, nearly half of the 74,- 27 population listed in the 1930
Federal census.

Candidates chosen in the April election will serve four years.

was sentenced by Judge T. C. Mun-

SAYS 25,000 JAPANESE CAN BEAR ARMS IN U.S.

Congressman Dockweller Barred From Speaking Further at House Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A statement that 25,000 Japanese in California "are capable of going under arms tomorrow" was made to the House Military Committee today by Representative

Dockweller (Dem.), California. He was testifying on a measure to establish 10 strategic air bases in the United States, Alaska and the Panama Canal.

When Dockweller said the establishment of a base in Alaska had been spoken of as a "cause of affront to Japan," he was interrupted by Chairman McSwain, who remarked the committee's policy was to "eliminate anything that might be distorted into aggression."

He said the committee's official reporter always was asked to strike from the record the word "Japan" or "England" or the name of any other nation.

Dockweller said: "There is a fleet of 150 Japanese fishing boats in Los Angeles harbor. They have a long cruising radius. At least they appear to be fishing boats."

HITLER TO DEMAND AUSTRIAN VOTE ON JOINING GERMANY

Unless Allied Powers Agree, Nazis Will Not Approve Non-Intervention Treaty, Officials Say

REPLY TO BRITAIN,
FRANCE PREPARED

Ambassadors Notified Any Air Pact Accepted Must Allow Reich Force Equal to Russia's.

(Copyright 1935, by the Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Feb. 13.—German officials said today that Reichsfuehrer Hitler would ask the allied powers to accept a plebiscite in Austria to determine whether that nation desires to remain in Germany as a condition to Germany's agreement to a pact guaranteeing non-intervention in Austria.

These authorities stated that Hitler would refuse the Franco-British suggestion regarding non-intervention in Austria unless the other powers agreed to "a plebiscite to give the Austrian people a chance to decide whether they want to join Germany or to remain independent."

The German Government also was represented as being ready to accept an "air" aviation pact, but that such a pact must give Germany a fleet capable of competing with that of Soviet Russia.

Replies in "Courteous Terms." These conditions all were described as parts of the reply, "couched in courteous terms" which Reichsfuehrer Hitler is sending to Paris and London tomorrow or Friday. The tenor of this reply already has been communicated to the British and French Ambassadors in Berlin.

The French suggestion of an eastern securities pact, a government spokesman said, "is rejected outright if it is to be based on mutual assistance."

"The Reich," he said, "will continue with the Western Powers, but we cannot bind herself with them. A pact of non-aggression, however, might be possible."

Regarding the communication to ambassadors, the spokesman said: "This might bring some changes in the document before it finally forwarded, for we do not care to throw any bombs into the general European atmosphere."

Summary of Reply.

This authority summarized the reply as follows:

"The Powers must agree to give Germany absolute equality in armaments before anything else is talked about."

"Germany will negotiate an air pact providing her relations with Soviet Russia are taken into consideration and providing England, France, Italy and Belgium agree to submit before any action is taken to give the signatories to send their fleet automatically in such case as required by the French."

Non-interference with Austria is another basic condition insisted upon by Hitler to determine the fate of the Austrian people.

An Eastern European Security Pact is not acceptable when given mutual assistance.

The general question of disarmament is allied with the air pact and must be settled at the same time.

These points, the spokesman said, may not all be bluntly stated in writing but they are what the note means."

Hitler's attitude on the Austrian question, it was said, is based on the belief that the Austrians really want a Nazi government and closer cooperation with Germany.

WEBSTER GROVES, MAPLEWOOD SUPPLEMENTARY REGISTRATION

BILL FOR MORE PRISON GUARDS

Put in Shifts to 8 Hours Approved by Senate Committee.

By ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, CLAYTON, Feb. 13.—The Senate Committee on Penal Institutions yesterday approved a bill already passed by the House, which would provide eight-hour shifts for guards at Missouri penitentiary. Guards now work 12-hour shifts at a salary of $135 a month. The bill would not reduce their hours.

When the measure was passed in the House, Republicans charged that it was a political effort to create more jobs for Democrats. If the bill goes into effect it will be necessary to hire 68 additional guards at an increased expenditure of about $225,000 for the department.

"Is this fact important to you?"

"Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand."

FLAVOR! Jack Shea, Olympic Champion Speed Skater: "Camels taste so good that with me Camels get the nod every time. When people mention my being a cigarette smoker, I correct them and say, 'I'm a Camel smoker!'"

MILDNESS! Betty Chase, expert skater, gives this answer: "Camels are so mild and appealing! And smoking Camels steadily never tells on my nerves. To me, it's a very important fact that Camels use finer and choicer tobaccos."

VALUE! "I'm just an interested winter sports fan," says Edward Kent. "But I'm with Jack Shea and Ray Stevens when it comes to smoking Camels! I get a lift with a Camel when I'm low and need cheering up, or when I'm tired. And the fact that tobaccos of a choicer quality are used in Camels goes far to explain why Camels are so mild and pleasing, and never jangle my nerves. It means a lot to me that millions more are spent for the tobaccos used in Camels."

ASSERTS POLITICS PLAYED PART IN SHIP SCRAPPING

Warship Builder Gives Senators His Views on Vessels Completed or Sunk
Under Treaty.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—An assertion that "political influence" had governed which United States battleships were to be scrapped under the 1922 disarmament agreement was made before the Senate Munitions Committee today by Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co.

"They (the Huntingtons) were always very helpful to the people of the community," Ferguson said.

"Very helpful by keeping their hands off," interjected Stephen Raushenbush, committee counsel.

Ferguson told of the founding of the company by Collis P. Huntington and of its transfer on his death to the control of H. E. Huntington of Pasadena, Cal. His brother, H.

E. Huntington, died in 1927, he said, and Archer Huntington, of New York, son of Collis P. Huntington, came into control.

He declared that "political influence" was employed in such instances. "Normally when a Senator has a ship being built in his vicinity," he said, "he wants to see it completed." He added that the West Virginia, in his own yards finally was completed while the Washington, in the New York yards, was "taken out and sunk."

In other words," Raushenbush said, "you mean by your long story they have kept their hands off and let you do the shipbuilding." Always," Ferguson said.

The ship business at Newport News gave the town an industry which during the war-time put an estimated 12,000 men to work, it was said yesterday.

REPORT SUGGESTS
CITY DISTRIBUTION OF NATURAL GASPublicly Owned System
One Way Out, Engineer
Tells Committee of Aldermen.RATES IN STATE
BELOW THOSE HERELaclede Co. Deliberately Kept Unmixed Fuel From St. Louis, Expert Charges — Hearings Opened.

An engineering report, presented today to the Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen, showed an abundance of natural gas available in St. Louis, that present gas rates here are much higher than in many smaller Missouri cities where straight natural gas is supplied, and suggested a publicly owned gas distribution system as a possible remedy.

Robert M. Boyles of the firm of C. E. Smith &amp; Co., consulting engineers in the city, presented the report as the first of a series of hearings through which the Gas Committee hopes to show how low-priced natural gas could be supplied with a consequent moderation of the smoke evil. In the course of the hearings the committee expects to take testimony of executives of the Laclede Gas Light Co. and of persons engaged in the business of producing and piping natural gas.

Gas City Now Uses.
Gas now supplied in St. Louis by Laclede Gas Light Co. is a mixture of natural gas and manufactured gas having a heat value of 1000 B. T. U. in natural gas. St. Louis gas, Boyles said in his report, is made up of 28 per cent natural gas, 34 per cent oil gas, 36 per cent coke oven gas, 2 per cent of miscellaneous gases. The natural gas is purchased from the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation which brings it from Louisiana through a 450-mile pipe line.

The cost to domestic consumers in St. Louis, Boyles reported, is 52 per cent greater than the cost of straight natural gas in Kansas City.

Comparative Cost.
Using 20 therms (2500 cubic feet of St. Louis gas) as the average monthly consumption for household purposes, Boyles submitted a table showing that in 15 other largest cities of the State, all using natural gas, the cost is lower. The table follows:

City	Population	Cost of
St. Louis	82,000	$2.34
Kansas City	400,000	2.19
St. Joseph	81,000	2.80
Springfield	58,000	2.50
Joplin	32,000	1.54
Hannibal	23,000	2.92
Jefferson City	22,000	2.80
Sedalia	21,000	2.80
Columbia	15,000	2.80
Independence	15,000	2.80
Carthage	9,700	2.50
Mexico	8,300	2.80
Marshall	8,100	3.00
Nevada	7,800	1.60
Papier Bluff	7,500	2.50
West City	8,600	2.50

Boyles stated that all "technical features of the St. Louis situation" are conducive to lower rates here, "because such controlling factors as our great density of population per mile of main, and the large consumption in a limited territory are outstanding in our favor."

At Door of Natural Gas."
Discussing the availability of natural gas, Boyles said:

"For all practical purposes, St. Louis is at the very door of the greatest natural gas fields in the country and has been in the heart of natural gas activities ever since the development of long-distance pipelines. But, in spite of this, St. Louis is being denied the benefits of the fuel while the supply which really belongs to it is diverted to neighboring communities and to the distant Eastern market."

He described the major gas-producing fields, pointing out that the ones in Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas were the ones to which St. Louis should look for a source of gas. He quoted E. B. Harrison, chief economist of the Bureau of Petroleum Economics of the Bureau of Mines, as having estimated gas reserves in the territories embracing Southwestern Kansas, the Oklahoma Panhandle and the Texas Panhandle, were sufficient to supply a demand of 1,250,000,000 cubic feet a day for 37 years.

Ample Supply Available.

The Mississippi River Fuel Corporation's pipe line has a capacity of 100,000,000 cubic feet a day, and, Boyles said, is now selling about 40,000,000 cubic feet a day, leaving a capacity for additional sales of 60,000,000 cubic feet, which is about

DR. TOWNSEND ADMITS
PLAN REQUIRES TIMEDecides for First Two Years
Only Those 75 Would Get $200 Monthly.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Dr. F. E. Townsend, Long Beach (Cal.) physician, told the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday that it would take two years to put his old-age pension plan into full operation and at first, payments would have to be confined to those over 75 years of age.

Townsend was recalled by the committee after Dr. Robert R. Doane, New York economist, offered as a witness by Townsend, had testified the proposed 2 per cent transaction tax would yield only $4,000,000 a year.

"It is obvious," Dr. Townsend said, "it would be impossible to begin paying $200 a month to all over 60 immediately. It would take some time to register all the eligibles."

"But," interposed Chairman Doughton, "that is the basis upon which the plan has been sold to people all over the country."

Dr. Townsend said no one has believed the plan could be put into immediate operation if the bill proposed by him should be enacted. He suggested, then, that payments be limited at first to those over 75.

"People Deceived."
"Somebody has been telling these people they could be put into immediate operation for all over 60," Doughton said, "and they have been deceived."

"I have not deceived them," Dr. Townsend said.

"That may be," Doughton said.

Doane testified it would be impossible to put the plan into immediate operation. The operation of the transaction tax, he said, would raise living costs about 10.6 per cent, and counting a frequency of six transactions a year would yield in the neighborhood of $4,000,000,000. He, too, suggested that the age limit should be fixed at 75.

Court Remedy Unlikely.
"You ask 'Is there not remedy in the Courts?'. Unfortunately, there does not seem to be, because the Supreme Court has held successively that it will not entertain the suits of taxpayers, and, therefore, it will be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to bring before the Court the question of the constitutionality of the decision."

Doughton said after the hearing closed that limiting the beneficiaries of the Townsend plan to those over 75 would eliminate four-fifths of all those who believed they might benefit from it.

Aid for Blind Sought.

A delegation of blind men appeared before the Senate Finance Committee to plead for special benefits under the administration social security program for those who cannot see.

Chairman Harrison extended the hearing to permit several of the members to testify. One of the men was led to the witness chair by a trained dog.

The delegation, headed by Robert I. Irwin of New York, representing the American Foundation for the Blind, asked that old age retirement benefits be extended to the blind at the age of 50, instead of the age of 65 fixed for the aged in the bill. They asked also for inclusion of blind children in the category of "crippled children" for which the bill would make a special appropriation.

TAKING WEATHER RECORDS
AT THE STREET LEVEL

System in Use Elsewhere May Be Established Here, Forecaster Says.

Roscoe Nunn, forecaster at the St. Louis office of the Weather Bureau, said today that while he had not received instructions to make meteorological observations on the ground rather than on the roof of the 21-story Railway Exchange Building, such a mode had gone into effect in Detroit, Atlanta and Kansas City and might be established here.

W. R. Gregg, chief of the Weather Bureau, informed Senator Truman in Washington yesterday that ground observations would be required throughout the country.

Nunn said that summer temperature recordings at street level would cause only a negligible change here. Roofs of surrounding buildings have the effect of raising the street level, he said, so that temperatures at the top of the Railway Exchange Building are representative of conditions on the street.

But winter temperatures, Nunn pointed out, are sometimes as much as five degrees warmer on the roof than on the street, partly because of heat engendered by smoke-laden air. The city does not cool off at night in winter so rapidly as the suburbs do.

ROOSEVELT APPROVES FULL
FEDERAL PAY RESTORATION

President Notifies Congress to Provide Funds for Period April 1 to July 1.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Full restoration of Government salaries effective April 1 was approved today by President Roosevelt.

The President said that restoration of the last 5 per cent of the original 15 per cent cut in Government salaries on April 1, instead of July 1 as he recommended, would cost the Government $16,000,000.

"It should be noted," he added, "that this sum was not contained in the budget estimates and that consideration should properly be given to methods by which Government revenues can be increased to meet this and any other new appropriations which tend to throw the regular budget out of balance."

This declaration in a written communication given out at the White House was regarded as additional notice to Congress that, if cash payment of the bonus is allowed, funds must be provided to pay for it. No provision was made in the administration's budget for the bonus payment.

RICHMOND, Va. Feb. 13.—Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, president emeritus of the College of William and Mary and son of the tenth President of the United States, died last night at his home in Charles City County, Va. Death was due to pneumonia. He was 82 years old.

He retired in 1919 when he resigned the presidency of William and Mary.

Asked about rumors that Italian troops had begun to leave for Africa, the spokesman did not repeat the denial he made yesterday but merely said he had no information on the subject.

BORDER DISPUTE

Agree to Establish Neutral Zone in Disputed African Area and Appoint Boundary Commission.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.) ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Feb. 13.—The Ethiopian and Italian Governments agreed today to the establishment of a neutral zone where clashes recently occurred and to appoint a boundary commission.

The agreement was reached by representatives of the two countries after several days of intensive discussion.

First reports of the understanding said the commission would investigate the situation which has arisen between Ethiopia and Italy over the boundaries of their empire and the Italian colonies of Somalia and Eritrea and then would attempt to end this dispute.

The Italian Minister of Ethiopia was said to be authorized by his government to arrange for the delimitation of the disputed frontier and to have been instructed to make arrangements to minimize the danger of additional clashes.

ETHIOPIAN KING Denies Mussolini in Sharp Note.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 13.—Negradas Yesus, Ethiopian Charge d'affaires, today presented to Fuvio Suvich, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, Emperor Haile Selassie's definite note holding Italy responsible for the African frontier conflicts which precipitated the Italian-Ethiopian crisis.

Immediately after the Ethiopian emissary departed, a Government spokesman announced the African monarch's stand had created "a very serious situation."

The note, the spokesman said, is equivalent to "defiance," adding that the gravest consequences might follow. He characterized Emperor Suvich's publication of his note before its presentation to Premier Mussolini's Government as undiplomatic procedure.

The official source repeated the Government's statement that the Jan. 29 conflict at Adfu, on disputed territory, was occasioned by Ethiopian aggression. He denied the Italians attacked an Ethiopian patrol at Gherogubi as charged in the Ethiopian message.

Asked about rumors that Italian troops had begun to leave for Africa, the spokesman did not repeat the denial he made yesterday but merely said he had no information on the subject.

FOR 3-YEAR LIMIT ON TIME TO ACT ON AMENDMENTS

Wadsworth (Rep.), New York, Amends Bill for Constitutional Provision at Cochran's Suggestion.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A proposal prescribing the way in which amendments to the Constitution shall be submitted to the states and setting a three-year time limit, at the end of which an amendment not adopted would be considered rejected, has been introduced in the House of Representatives by James J. Wadsworth (Rep.), New York.

This would prevent future amendments from, as Wadsworth put it, "floating around in the air for an indefinite period." In urging passage of his bill on the floor of the House, he pointed out that two amendments have been pending before the states since 1789 and one since 1810. As originally proposed by Wadsworth on the opening day of the session, the bill did not contain the three-year time limit. This was added by Wadsworth after he had discussed the measure with other Congressmen.

At present an amendment is considered by some as pending before the states so long as one state has ratified it, unless, of course, Congress in submitting the amendment specifies a definite time limit. A seven-year time limit was set on the prohibition amendment, the "Lame Duck" amendment and the amendment repealing the eighteenth amendment.

Silk Belt Runs Through Copper "Doughnut" in Device at Ohio State U.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 13.—Completion of a copper apparatus half the size of a silk belt which generates a million volts of electricity was announced today by the Ohio State University's department of physics.

It is something new in high energy, different from any of the other great machines which produce electrical currents equaling the smashing power of lightning.

After Mrs. De Witt Chastain of Butler, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, had obtained and submitted to the Governor a photostatic copy of the resolution of Congress submitting the amendment, an unofficial filing with the Governor was received.

Asked if the apparatus had changed its vota on the child labor amendment from no to yes.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Challenge To Giggling Foes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

EVIDENTLY the author of the anti-giggling bill and its supporters know very little about giggling. I am ready to prove it at the time in season.

There are very few game fish giggled at night; there are 20 times as many caught on artificial bait and 10 times as many caught on trot lines. As in other ways of fishing, sometimes you get nothing; some nights from 15 to 75 pounds, and you will never get half you see. It takes skill to hit a fish coming by so fast you can hardly get lined up with him. The idea that a light blinds a fish and that he will stay still and all there is to do is to gig him, originated in the imagination of people who know nothing about giggling.

To back my statement, I will be glad to go giggling with someone who thinks he can slaughter the bass. I have complete outfit for giggling and trot-line fishing; I am also a fly fisherman and bait caster. I will take him in my boat and furnish everything necessary for a giggling trip. I will pay the author of the anti-giggling law $25 for every bass he can gig, small-mouth, large-mouth or silver bass, if he will pay me $25 for each night I take him. Better than that, I will let him choose an expert gig fisherman and send him here to the Current River; the more nights he will go on these terms, the better pleased I'll be.

The fish that are giggled in large numbers are buffalo, carp and spoon-billed cat. How would anyone manage to catch a 10-pound buffalo on a hook of any kind? His mouth is soft and a hook will cut out.

At least 90 per cent of the landowners on the banks of rivers do not know how to fly fish, and a lot of them are not fully convinced that a bass can be caught in this way. They do not have time to fish that way or money to spare to equip themselves for that kind of fishing; they class it as a rich man's sport.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

T HUNDER ON THE LEFT," so Mr. Lippmann calls the various present centers of radical movement in the United States. While we may follow the historical pattern, yet it is "dangerous to prophecy," as "there are forces at loose in the outer world which might radically change the course of events."

Also do we find forces loose at home. Thus there is a disappearance of fertile lands for new settlement, natural resources more or less depleted, impounded surpluses for which there is no active market, capital thoroughly entrenched, the dominant and widespread use of the machine in factories, on the farms, everywhere; all these and more, we find in our present stage of maturity.

This is to be recognized as a high degree of stability, or does it portend the approach of dissolution and decay? All will depend, of course, upon how we, as a resourceful people, exert our ingenuity, our native shrewdness, our part ability to overcome all obstacles.

It is not likely that we will succumb, although if we are to preserve our democracy it may be necessary to make some fundamental changes in its Constitution so that the rights of man may take precedence over the rights of property.

Marceline, Mo. ARTHUR JOBSON.

Horace on Farm Tenancy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A HEADLINE in your Sunday issue, "Concern Over Rapid Growth of Tenancy," aroused my interest and suggested the following question from Horace. Deprived of his farm, the farmer rented it from its new owner.

"How are we worse off now?" he said to his son. "When we were rich we lived on smoked bacon and cabbage, perhaps a pullet or a kid if a friend dropped in; our dessert of split figs and raisins grown upon the farm. Well, we have just the same today. What matter that they called me owner then, and a stranger is called owner now? Though the farm is his today and was mine once, it can never belong to anyone except the man who works it and enjoys its fruits. So, boys, keep stout hearts and meet adversity bravely."

Today is not the tenant farmer in like case? He has no taxes, no interest to pay, and he lives on its fruits. Is he not better off than the owner? OPTIMIST.

POLITICS AND ROAD BUILDING.

The highway system of Missouri is one of the best in the country because politics has had little or nothing to do with it. The highways are for the most part honestly built, and they shine by comparison with those in states which let politics intrude upon road building.

Very well. What is it the Democratic majority in the Missouri Senate proposes? It proposes in the Quinn bill, which has been perfected for passage, to make politics the controlling factor in appointments to the State Highway Department and State engineering institutions.

The bill provides that no employee of any State department except the public schools shall be paid his or her salary until there is on file with the Secretary of State a statement of the recipient's political affiliation, salary, etc. As if that had anything to do with any State employee's fitness!

We are entering upon a serious and thorough study of the whole problem. Realizing that in order to eliminate smoke we have to provide a smokeless fuel, which will be a real competitor of smoke-producing fuel, we are going thoroughly into the availability of natural gas and also of cheaper coke.

There is no desire on the part of anyone to hurt any vested interest, but we consider the health and comfort of the people as more important than anything else. I propose to leave no stone unturned to solve this great problem.

That is the point. It is a matter of self-preservation. A matter of property values in the city. A matter of the public health. A matter of making St. Louis a clean and wholesome place to live in. It is disheartening to see, year after year, much of the finest business property in the city fall into disuse. It is appalling to see year after year some of the finest residence districts in St. Louis fall under the blight of smoke. The very trees in the streets wither and die. The Missouri Botanical Garden, sometimes called the greatest show place in St. Louis, has been compelled to transfer its major operations to a tract of land in Franklin County. The smoke is literally driving the garden out of the city.

This is still a compelling reason for keeping the highways out of politics, and we hope to see the present Legislature respect it. If it does not do so, the State will be the loser. It will lose the confidence of the people and the confidence of the Government. These are much greater public assets than mere party jobs and favors to friends.

ILLINOIS TACKLES ITS SCHOOL PROBLEM.

The Illinois Legislature acted wisely in its prompt passage of the State administration's educational commission bill, which Gov. Horner has now signed. No thorough reform of the public school system in Illinois could be accomplished without comprehensive survey such as the new statute anticipates. How much the commission will make of its opportunity depends largely on its personnel. In this connection, the responsibility of the Governor, as it should be, is great. He is to appoint 10 members, while the State Senate and House are each to have five members.

Obviously, the members whom the Governor is to appoint are the ones who should bear the brunt of the work. It will be up to him to choose the professional educators and school administrators who will bring experience in school matters to the commission's deliberations and findings. So important an undertaking should be allowed all the time which it requires. At the same time, the school system in a State which has just as many school districts now as it had 30 years ago is one which ought to be brought up to date at the earliest possible moment.

Airplane, wireless and cable are making these remote spots play a useful role in the world. The march of progress, it is safe to predict, will some day find a utilitarian role for Little America.

SEEING THE LIGHT.

There is by this time virtually no disagreement among those who would rescue St. Louis from its pall of smoke. They are agreed that only smokeless fuels can redeem the city.

Mayor Dickmann is a convert to this theory. He proposes, as possible municipal enterprises, a coking plant and a distribution system for natural gas. Mayor Dickmann says very properly:

"We are entering upon a serious and thorough study of the whole problem. Realizing that in order to eliminate smoke we have to provide a smokeless fuel, which will be a real competitor of smoke-producing fuel, we are going thoroughly into the availability of natural gas and also of cheaper coke.

There is no desire on the part of anyone to hurt any vested interest, but we consider the health and comfort of the people as more important than anything else. I propose to leave no stone unturned to solve this great problem.

That is the point. It is a matter of self-preservation. A matter of property values in the city. A matter of the public health. A matter of making St. Louis a clean and wholesome place to live in. It is disheartening to see, year after year, much of the finest business property in the city fall into disuse. It is appalling to see year after year some of the finest residence districts in St. Louis fall under the blight of smoke. The very trees in the streets wither and die. The Missouri Botanical Garden, sometimes called the greatest show place in St. Louis, has been compelled to transfer its major operations to a tract of land in Franklin County. The smoke is literally driving the garden out of the city.

This is still a compelling reason for keeping the highways out of politics, and we hope to see the present Legislature respect it. If it does not do so, the State will be the loser. It will lose the confidence of the people and the confidence of the Government. These are much greater public assets than mere party jobs and favors to friends.

To back my statement, I will be glad to go giggling with someone who thinks he can slaughter the bass. I have complete outfit for giggling and trot-line fishing; I am also a fly fisherman and bait caster. I will take him in my boat and furnish everything necessary for a giggling trip. I will pay the author of the anti-giggling law $25 for every bass he can gig, small-mouth, large-mouth or silver bass, if he will pay me $25 for each night I take him. Better than that, I will let him choose an expert gig fisherman and send him here to the Current River; the more nights he will go on these terms, the better pleased I'll be.

The fish that are giggled in large numbers are buffalo, carp and spoon-billed cat. How would anyone manage to catch a 10-pound buffalo on a hook of any kind? His mouth is soft and a hook will cut out.

At least 90 per cent of the landowners on the banks of rivers do not know how to fly fish, and a lot of them are not fully convinced that a bass can be caught in this way. They do not have time to fish that way or money to spare to equip themselves for that kind of fishing; they class it as a rich man's sport.

Obviously, the members whom the Governor is to appoint are the ones who should bear the brunt of the work. It will be up to him to choose the professional educators and school administrators who will bring experience in school matters to the commission's deliberations and findings. So important an undertaking should be allowed all the time which it requires. At the same time, the school system in a State which has just as many school districts now as it had 30 years ago is one which ought to be brought up to date at the earliest possible moment.

The Mayor sees the light.

AN EASY ONE.

At least one committee of the United States Senate should have no difficulty in bringing in its report. Its chairman is Senator King of Utah; its other members are Senators Norris and Burke of Nebraska, Logan of Kentucky and Hastings of Delaware. The question which faces them is what to do with the proposal of Senator Sheppard of Texas to restore constitutional prohibition, which is the same as saying that they are confronted by no question at all.

ITALY MOVES ON ETHIOPIA.

Italy agreed at Geneva a few weeks ago to settle its boundary dispute with Ethiopia by negotiation. This was a modification of the earlier Italian demand, following several bloody clashes in the disputed region, for reparations by Ethiopia. Now, however, after reports of another battle, Italy takes more drastic action. A force of 250,000 men has been mobilized, three classes of marines have been called out and the air fleet has been ordered to Africa.

This demonstration can have only one of two objectives: war, or a colossal demonstration to overawe the African nation. In either event, it seems likely that Mussolini is about to launch his long-awaited effort to gain additional territory in Africa. By diplomatic means, he has paved the way for this action. In the agreement with France last month, Italy agreed to modify her policy in Europe and in return received from France territorial concessions in Africa and promise of a free hand in dealing with Ethiopia. Valuable mineral and agricultural resources, room for territorial expansion, national glory and commercial opportunities are the glittering attractions that draw Il Duce's eyes to Africa.

Italy was late in entering the imperialistic race for African and Asiatic territory. His holdings are insignificant alongside those of England and France, whose promises to cede additional territory to Italy in return for aid in the World War were not kept.

Belvidere Benham was, it may be recalled, the philanthropist of the clan. A rustic Ponzi, his little frame house in that somnolent Illinois town became to the countryside a temple in Eldorado. Thither they brought their money, pittances sealed with the denial of thrifty years, lured by the fabulous promise of 50 per cent a month. Alas for credulity, seasoned with avarice! From John Law's Mississippi Bubble to Sam Insull's Power Empire, how many glittering adventures have appeared and bloomed and perished, trailing dark clouds of dynastic devastation.

Let us not get our own "Belvedere Joe" confused with these magic-wanders of finance. Joe was a boniface, keeper of that Inn of Capri, "mine host," urban and pastoral, to the gay wayfarers of his little world.

Constitutional injunctions, statutory verbotens, the forbidding frowns of municipal ordinances that obliterated so many taverns and drove commercial hospitality into dark retreats and diplomatic masquerades—those legal thou-shalt-nots were all merrily countered with "Nothing worries Belvedere Joe." That effervescent philosophy, it may be suspected, has temporarily ceased to fizz.

Belvidere Benham, after a brief, dizzy spin, has left the Sheriff's hammer measure, in fatal cages, the passing of the old homestead, and he sits on the bleak bench of unemployment, while a dozen indictments dangle over his bowed head.

For a happy ending, may we turn to that god of herds and flocks and prophecy and amours? The marbled immortality of Antium is still beautiful, and we may still see him, in Virgil's portraiture, as "one upon whose shoulder ever rests the bow, who leaves his limbs in the Lavinian lake, the Delian and Preterian Apollo."

IN REMOTEST AMERICA.

The navigator and explorer do their share in bringing remote sections of the earth to notice, but it is the instruments of modern progress that prevent their slipping back into obscurity. Wake Island, for instance, is a mere speck of land 2200 miles west of Honolulu, two square miles in area, lying only eight feet above sea level. Though it was discovered by the British in 1796 and annexed by the United States in 1899, the island has no inhabitants and few persons have ever visited it. There is no fresh water, and no anchorage for large vessels. Yet this tiny and forbidding isle now acquires headline importance, for it will be an important mid-ocean station for the proposed trans-Pacific air route. The Pan-American Airways, which is launching the ambitious plan, also is seeking permission to build a radio station there.

Another little-known American possession, Midway Island, was made useful to the world by another invention, the ocean cable, a bulletin of the National Geographic Society relates. This tiny spot, westernmost of the Hawaiian group, was even more inhospitable than Wake Island. While the latter has a heavy growth of brush and trees, Midway was a barren waste. Shipsloads of earth were transported there to support vegetation and make the island habitable for the handful of cable company employees now living there.

Airplane, wireless and cable are making these remote spots play a useful role in the world. The march of progress, it is safe to predict, will some day find a utilitarian role for Little America.

NEWS REEL.

Jacksonville (Fla.) lawyer sues chain store for 1 cent, to test State sales tax law, and Osage (Okla.) man sues oil company for $2,000,000 for allegedly polluting well; St. Louis pair celebrate sixtieth wedding anniversary, and Alton man, seeking divorce, says wife left him day after marriage; New Bedford (Mass.) woman is awarded $1000 for two stolen kisses, and Cleveland woman is awarded 6 cents for one stolen kiss; 20 persons in St. Clair County, Ill., are indicted on charges of obtaining relief supplies under false pretenses, and Chicago man, re-employed, repays $55.94 he received as relief in 1933; St. Louis Federal Building is receiving first cleaning in 51 years, and statues in London are cleaned four times a year; picture that cost collector $10,000 is sold to Washington luncheon room owner for $310, and cow that cost Cornell University $200 returns $385 profit in year; thieves notify New York family their stolen car is being held for $150 ransom, and Cadiz (Ore.) man, on recovering stolen car, finds thieves had equipped it with radio, new tires and heater.

Here, then, is a publication of meaningless facts. But precisely because they are meaningless, they are bound to produce deep, widespread injustice. Men will be judged on misleading information which is all the more vicious because it has upon it the stamp of the Government's authority. To such injustice their inevitable and proper reaction will be a feeling of angry resentment.

To be made the object of suspicion, to be accused by gossips, on false evidence, with no means of defending themselves, with no method provided by which they can establish their good faith—to suffer all this and to know that no public interest is being served, is to put an intolerable strain on the patience of decent men. Every taxpayer, and every non-taxpayer, too, as I shall show in a moment, will feel that he has been arraigned before the gossip of the malicious, the hostile and the envious, and then had his hands tied and his mouth gagged.

The thing violates every canon of law and fair play. For a man is entitled to be examined on all the evidence, not on misleading excerpts from the evidence, and he is entitled to be examined where the charges are definite and he has an opportunity to answer them. The pink slip says he should be examined by the ignorant on false evidence without a chance to hear the accusation or to reply to it.

Let no one in Congress imagine that this will affect only a few hundred thousand large taxpayers. It will work its way into every village in the country. For those

Or Persistent Winter Coughs, Mix This at Home
Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's one of the most reliable, quick-acting medicines you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn winter coughs is amazing. Any druggist can supply you with a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, add 2 cups of water and one cup of water, stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed! It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money as much as any supply. Keeps perfectly and takes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this lessens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and helps heal the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Using this compound of Norway Pine in concentrated form, one of the most reliable agents for relieving severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SHOUSE ATTACKS POWER FOR PRESIDENT IN RELIEF BILL

this measure, at least as far as spent, I do not know what will be the action of the Senate upon the bill in question. I hope that many of its most glaring defects will be cured, and I hope if you agree with me, that despite its very worthy objectives, the form of the legislation is not only improper but definitely menacing, you will communicate with your Senators in an effort to have them use their influence to ward its correction."

Shouse next discussed the constitutional questions involved in the relief appropriation bill, and replied to a constitutional argument made in support of the measure by Donald R. Eichberg, in an address before the New York Bar Jan. 25.

Preamble Not Constitution.
A distinguished spokesman for the Administration, in a recent important speech, Shouse said, "took up his text, not the Constitution of the United States, but the Preamble to that Constitution, and apparently based his defense of legislative and administrative policy alike upon what he called 'the spirit of the Constitution' as embodied in the 'general welfare' suggestion of the Preamble.

"It is probably unnecessary to direct your attention to the fact that there have been numerous decisions which hold that the Preamble is not a part of the Constitution and does not confer any power. One most frequently cited is that of Mr. Justice Harlan in the case of Jacobson against Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11."

BILL TO INCREASE STAFFS IN STATE HOSPITALS OPPOSED

Donnelly, Casey, Kinney and Brogan Combine Fights New Member's Proposal in Senate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 13.—Un anticipated opposition from the controlling forces in the State Senate today delayed Senator McReynolds' bill to increase the number of physicians in the State Tuberculosis Hospital and the State Mental Hospitals to relieve admittedly deplorable conditions.

The bill drew a strong fire from the leadership of the Senate. Senators Donnelly, Casey, Kinney, Brogan and others, some of whom were apparently sincere and some of whom was obviously personal, McReynolds, a new Senator not having allied himself with the old combine.

The principal ground stated for the objections was that it would increase costs at the hospitals and that State finances were at low ebb. McReynolds had shown that the increased cost would not exceed $30,000 a year. At the request of Senator Donnelly, McReynolds agreed to place the bill on the informal calendar, but served definite notice that he would again call it up.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Check It With Half-Way Measures!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a common cold.

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all". Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours, until relieved.

It is intended to effect a cold in 24 hours. For, that's how fast Bromo Quinine acts when taken promptly.

First, it opens the bowels, an important step in overcoming a cold. Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Ask for it with your mind made up that you're not going to accept a substitute.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Shall we destroy the COAL INDUSTRY?

Coal is by far the cheapest fuel available to St. Louis, and the recent agitation regarding the replacing of soft coal with natural gas on account of smoke is best answered by the thousands of St. Louis homes today which have eliminated smoke through the proper use of coal.

Over 4,000,000 tons of coal is shipped into St. Louis annually. This requires 1600 trains of 50 cars each and means a freight revenue of approximately $6,000,000.00, and 50¢ of each freight dollar goes to labor. Were it possible to replace this coal and use natural gas, it would also mean that every man employed in the manufacture of the thousands of railroad cars required to haul the coal, the steel workers who produce the wheels, the painters; all would be no longer required; to say nothing of the men employed in mining and distributing this coal and the thousands of clerks, stenographers and other help employed in the offices. A ton of coal from mine to consumer represents a day's work, and the 4,000,000 tons of coal shipped into St. Louis annually represents 4,000,000 days' work—that's employment.

More than 1/4 of all railroad freight is coal. Railroads are in a bad way now. Take their largest item of freight away and both the railroads and their employees are permanently ruined.

If there were any real economy in attempting to secure natural gas, there might be some excuse for St. Louis listening to the seductive voice of the promoter and issuing bonds and accepting Federal aid to build pipe lines, but here are the facts:

Natural gas, to give the same service as is given by coal, would have to be sold in St. Louis to large users at from ten to fifteen cents per thousand cubic feet, and artificial gas from five to eight cents per thousand cubic feet. Could this be done?

The records of gas distributing companies over the United States show that the cost in cities, through mains, is not less than 70¢ per thousand for the small user and 40¢ for the large user of gas. This does not consider the cost of the gas, but is for distribution only. Again, while it is true that there is now a considerable amount of gas being piped to St. Louis and Chicago, yet to supply the entire fuel requirements of these two cities it would require twenty gas lines such as the existing lines, which would involve a new investment of upwards of $2,000,000,000 and in all probability the entire amount of natural gas within fifteen hundred miles of these two cities would be exhausted within two years' time. Is such an investment good business?

Pennsylvania was once a great source of natural gas. Ohio was once a great source of natural gas. Today that supply is gone. The State of West Virginia at one time got out an injunction seeking to prevent the export of its natural gas supply, but lost out in the Supreme Court. The remaining source of natural gas moved steadily westward and today the large centers of population are draining this country of its gas.

It took Nature millions of years to produce these gas pools, but it is taking humanity only a few years to destroy them.

Every merchant in St. Louis and every other business man in St. Louis benefits from the payrolls of coal mining companies, coal distributors, and railroads and their dependents—well over 100,000 persons. Most of the agitation regarding smoke is but a "smoke screen" of promoters and others who seek new ways of spending government money. Where smoke has been attacked as a nuisance and users of coal have been forced to put in smoke abatement devices and where the new methods now adopted by thousands of St. Louis homes has been in vogue, the smoke nuisance has been licked.

An aggressive smoke department of the City Government which really functions can do the job and we will not be obliged to further burden ourselves by taxation through an additional bond issue. Last year the State of Missouri and its citizens paid the Federal Government $80,000,000 in taxes. This year we will pay more, and next year we will pay still more, and this is to the Federal Government only. Our City tax burden is now high, and the bonded debt of the State of Missouri is over $110,000,000. The government program of public works is to make jobs—not to destroy them. Let us help the government spend our money wisely, not wastefully—in a way that will produce more employment—not promote unemployment.

The time for hysterical experiments, with the Utopian ideas, is surely past and the realization that we must pay for any orgy of unwise spending should face every citizen, not only in St. Louis but in the State of Missouri. Every tax dollar expended is a dollar taken from the earnings of private citizens and private industries. You are the Government, and the Government has no source of securing revenue except from you. It comes out of your pocket, either in direct taxes or through indirect taxes collected in higher prices for food, clothing, rent, fuel, tobacco, amusements, and everything you eat, wear or enjoy.

Are you interested in Government—taxation—jobs—bread and butter? Can this city afford to waste a huge sum of money—advance its fuel cost and throw many thousands permanently out of employment? Think it over.

Papal Nuncio Dines Hitler.
BERLIN, Feb. 13.—Adolf Hitler was guest of honor last night at the annual dinner tendered by the Papal Nuncio, Mgr. Cesare Orsenigo, in observance of the anniversary of Pope Pius' coronation. In view of the threatened conflict between Germany and the Vatican over the concordat, Hitler's acceptance of the invitation was regarded in political circles as significant. Also present were Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Premier of Prussia, and members of the diplomatic corps.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Former President Herbert Hoover eloquently Abraham Lincoln last night as a great liberal who "believed passionately that Americans should be the masters of the state and not the pawns of the state," and said:

"Lincoln would judge and express in illuminating phrase were he with us tonight."

Hoover, in a brief address at the Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club, joined with Dr. Glenn Frank, Col. Theodore Roosevelt and other noted Republicans in paying tribute to the great emancipator.

But, unlike the others, he made no direct attack on the present administration.

Text of Hoover's Talk.

Following is the text of the former President's remarks:

"I had no expectation of delivering an address, and I have prepared no address for this occasion. I shall deliver none now, but being in the city I should feel myself remiss if I did not join in this meeting of Republicans to pay homage to Abraham Lincoln."

"Lincoln was in himself the highest expression of the whole epic of American life. His individuality, his self-reliance, his courage, his patience, his tolerance and his intellectual honesty have been the living inspiration to three generations of our people. They are and should continue to be an inspiration to America in this period, as trying, if not more trying, than any that has confronted our country since Lincoln's time."

"It is, indeed, a period of grave difficulty for all our people. The aftermath of war, the adaptations necessary from the tidal surge of scientific discovery, the abuses which had grown in our economic system, the world-wide depression, the development of new social systems in foreign countries—all these factors confused our thinking. For this trial of ours comes to dominate the world. From all these dislocations there are everywhere a yearning and a striving to find individual and national security."

"Heren lies the high purpose of such meetings as this, which recall the character and the principles applied and expounded by Abraham Lincoln."

"Master of the State."

"Lincoln was a great liberal. He believed passionately that Americans should be the masters of the state and not the pawns of the state. He believed a fundamental spiritual truth had been revealed to humanity in the conception of personal liberty as the basis of society. He believed it was only through this release of the human spirit that human happiness and human progress were possible."

"Lincoln believed that while changes were inevitable, to meet the shifting scenes and problems of today, that those changes should be in method and not in principle. He held the abiding spiritual truth that all individual and national security must rest upon the orderly processes of constitutional self-government. In his own words: 'A majority held in restraint by constitutional checks and limitations, is the only true sovereign of a free people.' Thus his faith was built upon the solid foundations of freedom of the human spirit, which had been America's translation into government."

"This provides us with our text for today. Whatever violates, infringes or abrogates fundamental American liberty violates the life principle of America as a nation. So, if Lincoln would judge and express in illuminating phrase were he with us tonight."

Speech of Glenn Frank.

Dr. Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, said:

"Shall we follow a growing number of the nations—fall down the suicide road to the self-annihilating state or shall we gamble our future on an intelligently modernized capitalism that finds its profit in production for the masses and stabilizes its market by a progressively wider distribution of the national income through its policies respecting wages, hours, prices and profits?"

"I insist that the all-embracing State and an economy of private enterprise are two utterly divergent roads to the future."

"We cannot go in both directions at once and expect anything but a continued stalling of the economic machine, save as Federal expenditures keep its wheels moving for a time under artificial stimulation."

The overwhelming majority of Americans, he added, "are simply not ready to scrap an economy of private enterprise."

"There is a battle between straight and crooked thinking, between a frantic clutching at patent medicine remedies and a true scientific experimentation, between workable and non-workable policies, between realism and mud-muddling."

"It is only a question of time until American democracy will become the bond slave of increasingly demagogic politics unless we now muster the insight, the courage, and the statesmanship to throw both our obstinate conservatism and our obsolete liberalism on the scrapheap and develop in their stead a new political realism."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

FEAR DOMINATES WORLD, HOOVER SAYS IN SPEECH

"Everywhere a Yearning and a Striving to Find Individual and National Security," He Declares.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Former President Herbert Hoover eloquently Abraham Lincoln last night as a great liberal who "believed passionately that Americans should be the masters of the state and not the pawns of the state," and said:

"Lincoln would judge and express in illuminating phrase were he with us tonight."

Hoover, in a brief address at the Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club, joined with Dr. Glenn Frank, Col. Theodore Roosevelt and other noted Republicans in paying tribute to the great emancipator.

But, unlike the others, he made no direct attack on the present administration.

Text of Hoover's Talk.

Following is the text of the former President's remarks:

"I had no expectation of delivering an address, and I have prepared no address for this occasion. I shall deliver none now, but being in the city I should feel myself remiss if I did not join in this meeting of Republicans to pay homage to Abraham Lincoln."

"Lincoln was in himself the highest expression of the whole epic of American life. His individuality, his self-reliance, his courage, his patience, his tolerance and his intellectual honesty have been the living inspiration to three generations of our people. They are and should continue to be an inspiration to America in this period, as trying, if not more trying, than any that has confronted our country since Lincoln's time."

"It is, indeed, a period of grave difficulty for all our people. The aftermath of war, the adaptations necessary from the tidal surge of scientific discovery, the abuses which had grown in our economic system, the world-wide depression, the development of new social systems in foreign countries—all these factors confused our thinking. For this trial of ours comes to dominate the world. From all these dislocations there are everywhere a yearning and a striving to find individual and national security."

"Heren lies the high purpose of such meetings as this, which recall the character and the principles applied and expounded by Abraham Lincoln."

"Master of the State."

"Lincoln was a great liberal. He believed passionately that Americans should be the masters of the state and not the pawns of the state. He believed a fundamental spiritual truth had been revealed to humanity in the conception of personal liberty as the basis of society. He believed it was only through this release of the human spirit that human happiness and human progress were possible."

"Lincoln believed that while changes were inevitable, to meet the shifting scenes and problems of today, that those changes should be in method and not in principle. He held the abiding spiritual truth that all individual and national security must rest upon the orderly processes of constitutional self-government. In his own words: 'A majority held in restraint by constitutional checks and limitations, is the only true sovereign of a free people.' Thus his faith was built upon the solid foundations of freedom of the human spirit, which had been America's translation into government."

"This provides us with our text for today. Whatever violates, infringes or abrogates fundamental American liberty violates the life principle of America as a nation. So, if Lincoln would judge and express in illuminating phrase were he with us tonight."

ROOSEVELT COMMENT ON MACON DISASTER

Praises Navy for Rescue Work; Says New Craft Will Not Be Built Now.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt gave the navy a good word today for its rescue work in the collapse of the dirigible Macon and said no new funds would be asked of Congress at this time to replace the ship.

Roosevelt said, however, the lighter-than-air craft had a distinct part in military service and the dirigible would not be abandoned.

Roosevelt brought up the subject of the Macon at the start of his regular press conference. He remarked that everyone felt bad about its loss and especially for the loss of the two men, adding that he thought the Navy had done a pretty good job in rescuing the crew.

He spoke with some feeling about the loss of the airship. Last summer on his way to Hawaii the Macon poked its way through clouds and found the cruiser Houston carrying Mr. Roosevelt 1500 miles off coast, the ship dropping mail and papers. He recalled this

BORN IN Faribault, Minn., which had been founded by his father, Mr. Faribault came to St. Louis when he was 20 years old. He was associated with several real estate firms and retired 15 years ago. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Tracy Faribault, a son, William M.

The blasts, which were about one minute apart, scattered fenders and parts of three new automobiles over a wide area. The drivers were resting in a filling station after a trip from Detroit en route to Conneaut, O. Witnesses said that an automobile sped down a side road soon after the explosions. Fred Schara and George Hunsberger of Buffalo, drivers of the transport, which is owned by the M. and G. Convoy, Inc., Buffalo, said they believed that labor troubles were the cause of the attack although they had experienced no difficulty so far this year.

Those indicted are officers and employees of the Railway Express Agency, Inc., and the American Distributing Co. of Kansas City.

The indictments allege that the American Distributing Co. shipped letters to fictitious addresses in Colorado, a wet state, and that through an understanding with employees of the express company, it was delivered to addresses in Omaha, Topeka, Wichita, Hutchinson and Euclid, Kan., and in Tulsa, Okla.

Among those named were Frank E. (Fritz) Mulley, recently sentenced to two years in the Federal penitentiary and fined $10,000 for conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Union Station murders. Mulley, now out on appeal, announced he would surrender at once.

Joe Lusco, North Side Democratic politician, also was named in the indictment, which cited 19 arrests involving consignment of liquor from Kansas City to alleged false addresses between Dec. 12, 1933, and April 10, 1934.

Those under arrest are James V. Quinn, who is said to be manager of the American Distributing Co.; George Storms, a salesman for the company; A. M. Atkins, an employee of the Railway Express Agency, Inc.; Edward C. Himborg, an employee of the same company; James Romano, Lewis Monteleone, Alex Prez and Mrs. Roselle Monteleone.

Fireman L. Mundt of Cleveland and Brakeman George Farrar of Bellevue, O., also leaped but escaped injury. Christy applied the airbrakes before he jumped and the train stopped a few seconds later.

The lights of a train approaching on another track are believed to have confused Christy.

Fireman and Brakeman Also Jump but Approaching Train Is On Another Track.

CONNEAUT, O., Feb. 13.—John R. Christy, a Nickel-Plate Railroad engineer, died yesterday of a skull fracture received when he leaped from the cab of his locomotive in the belief that the train was about to collide with another. He was 54 years old.

FOR SUBMITTING TAX AMENDMENT TO VOTE

Senate Committee Approves Proposal for Excise Levy on Intangible Property.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13.—The Senate Committee on Elections has just approved a resolution which would submit to the voters at the next general election a constitutional amendment providing for the exemption of all secured debts from the personal property tax and empowering the Legislature to enact in lieu thereof an excise charge—does not exceed 4 per cent. A similar amendment with the exemption set at 5 per cent was defeated in the 1930 election.

Senator Lockridge's resolution would subtract little from the amount of revenue collected under Senator Crouse's proposal, if both were passed, it being estimated that the 4 per cent exemption would affect only about one out of a thousand mortgages.

The exact rate of the tax would be for the Legislature to fix. In 1917 the Legislature passed a secured-debt law placing a tax of 5 cents on the $100 valuation of all intangibles, but it was later declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Senator Crouse has estimated that a similar low tax would bring out of hiding about $2,000,000,000 of mortgages, notes, bonds and other evidences of debt. A 5-cent tax rate on this valuation would yield the State $1,000,000. The State now receives about $125,000 a year from taxes on intangibles.

In his message to the Legislature, Gov. Park, in a similar effort to get at hidden property, recommended that all intangible property be outlawed in the courts unless the tax had been paid on it. Senator Crouse's resolution does not follow this recommendation, but he expressed the belief that the Legislature could pass such a provision after it had fixed an excise tax.

Senator Crouse's resolution also contains a provision exempting all homesteads of $2000 or under from the personal property tax. Real estate men from St. Louis and Kansas spoke on the provision and recommended that the resolution be changed so that all real property be assessed for taxation "not more than 50 per cent of its true cash value," which would be ascertained by law. The committee, however, rejected this proposal.

The committee also reported favorably a resolution by Senator Will Lockridge of Fayette, which would submit to the voters a constitutional amendment providing for the exemption from taxation of all notes or evidences of debt for money loaned on real estate on which the total cost to the borrower—interest, fees and carrying three times the maximum gas usage in St. Louis at present.

Further, Boyles pointed out, the Panhandle-Eastern pipe line from Texas, with a capacity equal to that of the Mississippi River line, crosses the State 65 miles south of St. Louis and near the Illinois-Indiana line connects with the Eastern pipe line system of Columbia Gas & Electric Co. Boyles said a branch should be built from this pipe line to St. Louis, to connect with the Mississippi River line.

Attitude of Laclede Gas Co.

It appeared, Boyles said, that the Laclede Gas Light Co. had deliberately kept straight natural gas away from St. Louis domestic consumers. He cited provisions of the contract with the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation which would have the effect of prohibiting distribution of straight natural gas until 1947. "Why did Laclede demand a contract which keeps natural gas out of St. Louis?" Boyles asked, and then answered: "To prevent large amounts of equipment and property from becoming unused and obsolete and to permit the continuation of extensive inter-family dealings. In general, the objectionable features of these contracts are that Laclede agrees not to avail itself of economies which might develop over now and 1947, and hence the citizens of St. Louis have been deprived of their right to the low price gas which would result."

In conclusion, the report said:

EVEN SUPERLATIVES are insufficient to describe "Sequoia." So we'll content ourselves by saying that anything we say about "Sequoia" is true because the picture itself is so true.

There is no false melodrama, no striving for thrilling effects, no synthetic "love interest." But it's all there—drama intense and romantic—just as Nature unfolded it for two years, high in the wilderness of the Sierras, in an untamed forest that man had never even seen.

It took two patient, painstaking years to film "Sequoia" and when you see it, you'll know why. A few of the comments of those who have seen "Sequoia" are given here.

We guarantee you'll echo every word of their praise when you have seen this unique, absorbing picture.

campaign in the event of hostilities.

Details of the Note.

Just to make sure the world at large would receive the declaration of the "King of Kings" in the same form it was to be conveyed to officials, Yessus summoned newspaper men last night. Copies of the note were distributed also to other Ethiopian legations.

Yessus bluntly declared his countrymen would pay Italy no indemnities and were determined to resist any invasion. He denied Italian charges of aggression.

The Italian demands, which Yessus said Ethiopia would not accept without modification, were authoritatively reported to include:

—A salute to the Italian flag at Addis Ababa.

—A neutral zone along the frontiers of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, Italy's African colonies which border Ethiopia, from which all Ethiopian troops would be withdrawn.

—Final delineation of the borders.

—Tighter control by Emperor Selassie's Government over the roving, warlike border tribes, particularly in the neighborhood of the disputed city of Ushua, where two clashes resulted in the death of 35 Italians and the wounding of 66.

"We Will Never Attack."

Yessus said again and again: "We will not attack. We will never attack. However, in case of that attack we will resist."

He expressed the hope that, despite the critical state of affairs, a settlement might be reached. Peaceful means failing, he said, Ethiopia is prepared to send 1,000 men to the firing line.

The Emperor's statement said: "The conflict Jan. 29 near Gherogubi involved 25 Ethiopians, armed simply with rifles, who were suddenly attacked by an Italian band armed with machine guns after various reconnaissance flights by Italian airplanes above Gherogubi."

The message denied there could have been any attempt by the Ethiopian garrison to surround Af-dub, since that post was evacuated at the time the supposed attempt took place.

"Stirring Up Trouble."

To the Emperor's message Yessus added his own opinion that Italian officials in Africa, probably without the consent or knowledge of the central Government, were stirring up trouble among outlying native tribesmen with the object of putting Ethiopia in a bad light before the world."

He continued: "We cannot be expected to suffer in silence indefinitely. It has been apparent to Ethiopians for some time that the border incidents between the Italian native troops and our Ethiopian tribesmen have originated outside the desire of the Ethiopian people. Also for months past there has been a campaign of calumny against Ethiopia. We want this campaign stopped, and although we don't wish to fight we will do so if forced."

Admitting Emperor Selassie does not expect any foreign country to come to his aid, he declared, "Ethiopia does not need one."

Following his interview with Under-Secretary Suvich, Yessus told the Associated Press: Signor Suvich assured me that neither King Victor Emmanuel nor Premier Mussolini wanted war and I assured him that Ethiopia did not want war."

He said his discussion in the Foreign Office revolved on the question of which side was the aggressor in the fighting at Af-dub last month.

He said he could not give Suvich's reaction to Emperor Selassie's notable remark: "The Emperor himself has informed me that Ethiopian tribesmen were not to blame for the border conflict."

30,000 Soldiers to Sull.

Official reports say 30,000 Italian troops will sail from Sicily and Southern Italy Saturday on a punitive expedition to Ethiopia. Unofficial reports say a far greater troop concentration is in progress, indicating that a large part, if not all, of the 250,000 reservists called to the colors may be sent abroad.

It is understood several hundred militiamen have volunteered in Rome for the expeditionary force in answer to an official appeal and that proportionate volunteer enlistments are pouring in from the provinces.

Thousands of reversists listed as automobile men, mechanics, engineers, road builders, radio operators, tank men and other specialists continue to receive notices from the War Department to report for duty. The Associated Press learned of one man, 51 years old, who had received call.

Information received by the Italian Government is that 30,000 Ethiopian troops are massing along the border of Italian Somaliland.

5000 Physicians Called.

It was learned Italy was recruiting 5000 physicians for Colonial service. A battalion of 300 Fascist militia left Rome for Sicily at 7 a.m. with full Colonial equipment. The militia marched to the railroad station by a circuitous route skirting the main streets. Every effort is being made to keep the troop movements from disturbing the capital.

The only information on the crisis published so far in Italian newspapers has been two Government communiques Monday, one announcing the mobilization and the other the skirmish at Af-dub. They have also carried accounts of favorable reactions in London, Paris and Geneva to the Italian stand.

have the right to reject a proposed amendment and later on, even 10 years afterward, change its vote and ratify it," Wadsworth said. "When once a state has ratified, however, it may not change its mind and reject. When once a state has ratified, it can take no further action; that is the situation that accounts for these amendments hanging fire year after year throughout the generations."

Wadsworth's bill would not be retroactive, if passed, and therefore would have no effect on the status of the child labor amendment.

Long Pending Amendments.

The amendments pending from the eighteenth century limit the number of representatives and forbid members of Congress from voting themselves pay increases which would take effect before an election of representatives had intervened.

Wadsworth smilingly assured the House that to the best of his knowledge there was no concerted move in the states to make the latter amendment effective and thereby prevent the restoration of the final 5 per cent of the Federal pay cut on April 1. The amendment pending since 1810 takes citizens away from any citizen who accepts a title or a pension from a foreign Government and was an outgrowth, according to Wadsworth, of intense feeling over Napoleon.

The three-year time limit was put in at the suggestion of Representative Cochran of St. Louis who pointed out that an election should intervene before a State Legislature should be allowed to pass on the State had indicated their over-whelming opposition to it, approved by New York as chairman. Wadsworth said he had received considerable assurance of support from both Republican and Democratic sides of the House. The bill, he said, may eventually come before the Judiciary Committee for an open hearing.

Science Has Never Been Able To Improve on This Simple, Half-Century-Old Treatment

The proof of the pudding is certainly in the eating . . . and that is why millions of sufferers from body pains swear by Johnson's Red Cross Plasters. They are so easy and clean and pleasant to use. No fuss, no muss. No bother. They begin relieving instantly. Wear them while you work. They lift off easily.

Their soothing, warming, massaging support of aching parts, and their medication, which is absorbed through the skin, make these Johnson's Red Cross Plasters invaluable in all cases of dull, sharp or throbbing pains in shoulders,
back, legs, arms, abdomen, or chest . . .
particularly in lame back, lumbago, rheumatism, stiffness and sprains.

The value and effectiveness of this time-tried method of pain relief is shown by the fact that millions of people buy Johnson's Red Cross Plasters every year and will have nothing else. They know what these remarkable plasters do. For, despite their successful use for nearly half a century, these plasters are as modern as today's automobiles . . . and the most economical known. Science has never found a way to improve on them.

For your own comfort and relief, then, insist on the genuine . . . identifiable by the Red Cross on every plaster.

LABOR RELATIONS BOARD FOR CHANGE TO CLARIFY 7-A

Biddle Group in Review of Work Criticizes Uncertainty Over Recovery Act Section.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The National Labor Relations Board suggested yesterday that section 7-A of the National Recovery Act be clarified.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor for months have contended the clause guaranteeing employees' rights to bargain collectively should be changed to specify "majority rule" and to outlaw company unions.

Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, former chairman of the old National Labor Board, has said he would introduce a bill to include these changes. But that measure has not yet appeared, and from usually reliable sources has come the word that the administration wants 7-A continued in the new NRA law unchanged.

The Labor Board, headed by Francis Biddle, member of an aristocratic Philadelphia family, suggested clarification in a review of the first six months' work after a lengthy defense of "majority rule"— the majority of employees to choose the spokesmen for all employees in collective bargaining.

Asks for New Powers.
The board also asked for new powers to speed up enforcement of its decisions.

"Court enforcement under the present machinery is slow, uncertain and cumbersome," the report
has been increased by much litigation arising from uncertainty as to the meaning of section 7-A.

"There is perhaps ground for genuine disagreement as to its meaning. This should be clarified."

The Biddle board reported that in only 17 of the 68 instances of Section 7-A violation had compliance with its provisions been obtained.
Twenty-four Eliot Eagles had been removed, but in most instances
"the loss of the Blue Eagle had little practical effect," it asserted.

"Majority rule," the board said,
is "the keystone of any sound, workable system of industrial relationship by collective bargaining."

On Company Unions.

The board said also that in 30 per cent of its cases company unions were a primary cause of the disputes.

"All but two of these unions," it said, "were formed or revived since the passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act, and a great majority became active immediately before or after a contemporary labor union organizing movement, or in close relation to a strike."

The board also reported it had made a close study of the work
of special labor boards set up under conditions and reported:

"We do not believe that the setting up of separate industrial boards with authority to handle 7-A cases should be encouraged."

President Roosevelt a few weeks ago overruled the board's decision that it could consider complaints of newspaper editors and reporters. Complaints in industries that have no boards, Mr. Roosevelt said, should be heard by those boards.

The Federation of Labor Council voted yesterday to grant a charter to the Federal Automobile Unions to make them a full-fledged "international union." Automobile workers have been organized into these Federal unions, one to each plant, embracing as many employees in the plant as would join. There has been no central organization. Each Federal union was autonomous and directly under the federation.

The board also reported it had
made a close study of the work
of special labor boards set up under
conditions and reported:

ting up of separate industrial boards with authority to handle 7-A

First Term, Half Ended.
World Enemy, No. 1.
Mussolini, Warlike.
Loud Sings Jack Doyle.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1935.)

At noon Monday, President Roosevelt finished exactly half of his White House term, allowing for leap year's extra day in 1936. You will admit that he has been active, nothing at all like the Rois Faineants, "Idle Kings" of early French history.

Yesterday lawyers of the Hauptmann case were still talking. They talked so long, the Judge was compelled to put off until next day his address to the jury.

On Monday Hauptmann's lawyer told the jury, first in loud voice, and then in a soft, pleading voice, "Judge not, lest ye be judged."

On Tuesday, Attorney-General Wilentz, who had also gone to his Bible, came back with "He that killeth any man shall surely be killed."

Bruno Hauptmann's lawyer, Mr. Reilly, said nobody had proved Bruno's guilt. Attorney-General Wilentz told the jury that everything had proved Bruno's guilt, declared that Bruno Hauptmann was exactly "the fellow with the peculiar mental make-up who thought he was bigger than Lindy and when the news of this crime came out he would look at the headlines screaming across the page, just as the headlines screamed across the pages when Lindy made that famous flight."

If Mr. Wilentz is right and the jury agrees with him, there will be other headlines "screaming" that Bruno Hauptmann will not read.

In his attack on Hauptmann, Mr. Wilentz invented a new description, "World Public Enemy No. 1."

While we emerge from the foggy Hauptmann trial, which has attracted so much attention as the proposition to give the President $4,480,000,000 to spend, there is important news in Europe.

Mussolini has found the opportunity to show the world what it means when modern "Rome" starts driving.

It has mobilized an army with tanks to supplement tanks and artillery, and the Emperor of Abyssinia, Haile Selassie, must discipline his unruly chiefs that have offended Mussolini by an attack on African colonies, or so much the worse for Ethiopian Selassie, who believes that he is the direct descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Maybe he is, but he will encounter a problem that King Solomon's wisdom could not solve for him when he meets Mussolini's airforce.

Otherwise, Selassie will pay the indignity that Mussolini demands. As a practical business man, Mussolini always asks a little soothing cash. He got some from Greece. Also Selassie must salute the Italian flag, which costs nothing. Mexico would do that.

From Ireland comes Jack Doyle, via Mayfair, London, six feet four, handsomely face, nice smile, big muscles telling the truth about himself, whatever the damage to his modesty. I am not like the usual low-key fighter. I'll go up and up and up to the very top."

Mr. Doyle sings "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" very sweetly. Mr. Max Marz, at present prizefighter champion, cannot sing well, but he, too, has self-confidence: "Jack Doyle's prophecies are all very well. He may go up and up and up, but sooner or later, on the road up, he will meet me, and then he will go down and down and down."

Two Palestine-owned ships, the "Maccabi Zion" and "Tel Aviv," have regular sailings that will connect Palestine, Constanza and Tel Aviv. This is an intelligent step, paying service to Palestine because

Since the seas is nothing new to the people of the Jewish race. The navigators that ever ventured out of land without a compass were Phoenicians, daring Seafarers from the Eastern end of the Mediterranean. They sailed through the Straits of Gibraltar into the Atlantic to develop tin mines of England. It should be remembered also that Christopher Columbus was probably of Spanish-Jewish ancestry.

Last June Hitler had 200,000 heavily-armed special guards and with them broke the power of the black-coat storm troopers, with whom he will be divided, one-tenth of them allowed to keep rifles. Question is Chancellor Hitler's feeling now, or is he afraid to trust his brown-coats now, as he feared to trust his black-coats last June? It is easy for a dictator to have men around him, not so easy to know what they will do with their arms. The Roman Emperors discovered that

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

THERE'S nothing harder to kill than a Broadway belief. Take the belief about song writers. The Tin Pan Alley historians will ask you to believe that the lyric builders are people who move their lips when they write. They have stopped writing, and Shelley when they marry "love" to "above." Some times they're right, but you can tell by a peek at some of the wow songs of the past few years that lots of smoothies are using their education to write the nation's ditties. Only last week, Walter Winchell stated that the Prince of Wales tore off a march for bagpipes. Maybe you've got to be P. W. to write anything for the bagpipes, but you can see that the job has worked itself into the higher brackets. Then, too, the gentle Winchell who broadcasts under the name of Woolcott tossed a radio party for Jerome Kern who invited greetings by Ethel Merman, Alice Duer Miller, Kathleen Norris, Ned Coward, and others who don't reach for a pronouncing dictionary when they run into a two syllable word. Song writers aren't outcasts any more. The feeling that these versifiers are still on schooling was started by tales of Irving Berlin. We all know Berlin got his start warbling for "throw money" while working as a waiter in Ghetto places. And because some others had starts just as lowly, the legend grew that that's where they all came from.

Such Highbrows.

Some of the lyricists are educated enough to scare you. Lookit Brian Hooker, who is probably the dean of the present crop. He bulges with learning. "Who's Who in the Theater" advises you that he wrested an A. B. from Yale back in 1902 and then hung around to catch an A. M. two years later. And then for a time (and how do you like this, you snobs?) he taught English at Columbia. How's that for song-writer's apprenticeship? Of course, Hooker doesn't write the vodoo-doo-doo numbers, but the chants he turned out for "The Vagabond King," etc., were barked piently in the gay spots. Cole Porter, the present Top of the Rhythm stars, is another lad who came out of Yale with his head ringing with lyrics. His present crops of songs in "Anything Goes" are the gems of the season. It's pretty well established that the first of the "smart" lyrics were churned out by P. G. Wodehouse, the witty Britisher. Wodehouse's forehead reaches up to the sun, and his biography shows him to be an alumnus of Dulwich College in England, a London communist, and one-time dramatic critic for Vanity Fair.

A Banker, Too.

Dorothy Parker is another example for Vanity Fair who can deserve a swell lyre when she settles to it. She has a song in "Round the Town" revue called "I've Never Been Kept-Waiting," which was very naughty and singable. She wrote another for a flicker during her first gallop in Hollywood, but when she turned it in she ran like a "Cavalcade" all the way back to Manhattan. Probably the most startling background for a Broadway songwriter is that of Paul J. Swift, a banker who was good enough to get a job as financial adviser to the World Economic Congress in London, a Londoner back. He didn't write any songs about that, though.

Newman Levy, the barrister, whose law books every now and then seem to commit lyrics. He is smart enough, one hears, to rhyme "whereas," but he draws up his garnishment papers in straight prose. John Golden amassed the nest egg that made him a producer fretting over a legitimate partner for "June."

And More.

The most frequent associates of Kaufman are also members of the crew set. I mean Ira Gershwin, who can tickle the world with lyrics like "Oh! You! I Sing," and Morris Ryskind, who can do just as well. Ryskind is such a skilled poet that one of his creations directed at Nicholas Murray Butler got him graduated from Columbia long before his class was ready.

Channing Pollock, who harvested a fortune penning uplift plays, is an exile from Tin Alley. He was once on Ziegfeld's staff of songsmiths, and is best remembered for the Americanization of that "My Man" song that Fanny Brice used to sing to park tears from "The Folies" customers. Don Marquis, one-time columnist, could polish up a stylish lyric in his day, and there's nothing fumbling about the stanzas of J. P. McEvoy, who is a Notre Dame and an ex-columnist. The same rating goes for Walter O'Keefe, who isn't ashamed to sing his own ballads.

Blend cheese and mayonnaise and then add whipped cream. Chill and when ready to serve spread on intended crackers and dust with paprika.

Knitted Wear Prominent in Latest Styles

Along With Crochet Work It Has Assumed Varied Colors and Designs.

By Sylvia

ANY woman who plans to knit her way to fashion fame can begin immediately. Since the leading designers of France and America have been creating costumes that a woman can make with her own knitting or crochet needles, there's no longer doudness associated with this form of needle work. Yarn manufacturers also seem to be doing their part by offering their wares in many different weights and types. The color range likewise has been carefully styled, as was proved by the sample models on display in a recent store fashion show.

The knitter who is ambitious to conceal a surplus of avoidups above her waist will be eager to start work on a two-piece dress which has a cleverly draped dolman sleeve. A lace pattern goes from the neck down the top of the sleeve and also forms a lovely design on the front of the blouse. A belt of narrow crocheted bands braided together indicates the attention to details. Turquoise is a shade to be recommended.

A roll top blouse may not intrigue you by its name, but it will when you see its flattering features. It is knitted of a combined wool and silk yarn suggesting a criss weave and was designed by Maggy Rouff. The high round neck line rolls down while the short hip line remains. Two more tiny rolls of the knitted yarn adorn the front of the blouse. The sleeves are similarly finished.

The chic that results from combining a ribbed stitch with a series of plain ones is demonstrated by a three-piece spring suit. The semi-fitted jacket has ribbed sleeves, four ribbed pockets on the front and ribbed bands for the buttons and button holes. The skirt is plain. Both of these garments are of casement yarn, aqua colored. An egg shell blouse of French zephyr yarn introduces an eyelet pattern which forms a yoke.

All That Glitters

A Serial Romance

By ANNE GARDNER

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

TEARS stood for a minute in Jerry's eyes. "Jill Halliburton, the wretch! I could choke her! I wonder how she found out? I've hardly known it any time myself."

"She said a little bird told her." Mrs. Richards sighed again. Jerry was suffused with indignation. "That's really going too far. It's none of her business! It's nobody's business, but mine and Gordon's!"

Then she shrugged her shoulders. After all, it was no use fussing. In this day and age, privacy had become a privilege reserved for the most unimportant. However, she reflected, people soon forgot about your affairs in their interest over a new topic.

"You haven't told me how you are," Mrs. Richards reminded her.

"Oh, grand! Dr. Harmon says I'm fine as can be."

"Aren't you ill at all?"

"Mercy no! Never had such an appetite, never slept so much, but during such waking moments as I have I'm so full of pity that I don't know what to do with myself."

"I'm so glad. I was quite uncomfortable before you were born, and like Bette with her children. I was afraid it ran in the family."

"It probably does, but by recklessness I have escaped the curse."

Jane Richards smiled indulgently at this characteristic remark. "That reminds me. I had a letter from Bette today. She hasn't been well lately."

"Another baby?"

"I don't think so, from what she said. Dear me, I hope not!"

"I suppose it is selfish of me to be tickled at having a baby of my own and then begrudge Bette one, but after all, Gordon and I can give our children the things they ought to have."

"Yes, your children and Gordon's will be very fortunate." Mrs. Richards put her smooth white hand lovingly on Jerry's sleek head, and became remissinent.

"You were such a cunning baby. Bette was pink and white and curly, like the magazine cover babies, but you were little and dark and active, bright as a dollar. You walked and talked before you were a year old, and everyone turned to look at you on the street, your eyes were so big and brown, and your hair curled in tight little ringlets all over your head."

"Ringlets? What became of them?"

SEVERAL times Jerry, practically given over to these days, ran into Ross Taylor. On the first occasion, she went to him with outstretched hand, expressing her sympathy with a restraint and simplicity that were new to her. He thanked her, and went on. He looked thin, she thought, older, harder, and he seemed to wear the black band on his sleeve as a challenge.

Jerry had heard long since that in a way the death of his father had benefited Ross. The heavy financial obligations, which he had felt obliged to assume, had at last been adjusted, and not only was every loss suffered through the elder Taylor's speculations made good, but Ross need no longer spend much of his time working with his father's hopeless affairs.

He was digging into his law practice diligently, she was in business hours. Thereafter when Ross and Jerry met, she smiled, he raised his hat and bowed, and no words were exchanged unless politeness made it necessary.

It was impossible to tell from Ross' manner, distant but scrupulously courteous, whether his attitude toward her had changed or not. If he had heard the news about her, he gave no sign about it.

Ross, however, had heard the news, and something within him had suddenly twisted and hurt. Jerry having a baby—that somehow seemed so final. It made him realize that up to now he had never regarded things as finally settled between himself and Jerry.

He had found no interest in any other girl, had not even troubled to pretend any interest. She didn't love Ross—she couldn't. The man was only a sham, with a good-looking exterior and a gift for making money. These things might induce Jerry to marry him, but they would never make her out of his mind.

And so the days went by, the weeks and the months, and the time of waiting did not seem too long. In spite of all her new tenderness and good intentions, Jerry would not have been Jerry if she had not dramatized herself in her new role. Gordon encouraged her to, by his unfailing solicitude, his attention to her every whim.

Jerry had always been noted for her caprices, and now she outdid herself in that direction. She and Gordon might start out to eat dinner at one place, change their minds and go to another instead, sit down at a table, look at a menu card and then get up and leave.

On more than one occasion they repeated this performance several times, then ended by going back to the hotel and having the meal sent up to their rooms. Gordon was invariably patient, always urging Jerry to accept nothing except what she really desired.

The daytime was taken up largely by shopping, rapturous shopping, with baby accoutrements as the main objective. Accompanied usually by Barbara, Jerry would investigate everything that science and fashion offered for the care and adornment of the human infant.

As she bought everything that appealed to her, the closets of the department were bulging with boxes and packages containing enough clothes, bedding and toys for six well turned-out babies.

The entrance of Jerry into the infants' department of any store was the signal for joy unlimited among the clerks. They knew that Mrs. Brock would buy without reference to price tags.

Nor did she stop with things for babies. As she roved about the department, seeing cunning suits for small boys, darling dresses for small girls, she would buy these also. Jerry argued to Barbara that

"I WANTED OUT"

After a Few Months on a San Francisco Newspaper the Writer Receives a Very Momentous Note.

CHAPTER NINE.

THREE'S a popular impression that column writing is a highly paid picnic, and practically every graduate of a journalistic college course aspires to such a position. No ambition could be more pathetically futile. A columnist can't be made. He must be born to his job. He must, within himself, always be writing and living in his column, whether it ever sees paper or not.

This is why there are so few successful columnists. It is also why columnists are so cussed. Take my advice—never marry one of them. If you don't believe me, ask my ex-husbands! All writers are matrimonial misfits, but a columnist is a holocaust.

I was nearly 36 when I got my one can have loved or suffered as we have. So unconsciously, we make a fetish of our tragedy. Our cross becomes a pedestal, a rosary.

And, all too often, a racket!

Sorrow's such a convenient hideaway. There's no easier escape from responsibility, no slicker or more sanctified alibi for selfishness, laziness, cowardice and general cussedness, than a broken heart. Nor one more respected by the pitying public. Who dare bare the afflicted? Brutal words? Maybe; but also merciful ones and desperately needed. For if we use sorrow as a hide-away, we may duck responsibility—but we also pass up life. Then grief, the hideaway, becomes also a grave, and we are entombed, as surely as our dead.

As I write this—in the lonely mountain cabin where I spend most of my time now—I remember the great ones who have made my work had taught me that. And 21 years of motherhood had taught me another truth:

Love is worth anything it costs. Love—even with the cheapening alloy of our selfishness—is a mingling beyond the nature of all other human experience. It has sources and horizons which defy our definition. It cannot be bounded or valued by time or space. One does not love for "so long" or "so much."

One simply loves. And a year, or even a week, of real love are enough to transform a whole life.

I pardoned him. The note was signed—"Arthur Brisbane."

Brisbane brought me into Hearst's syndicates. He asked me to come East. I went. I remember I was rather fussed as to what I was such a great privilege that I should have been willing to walk proudly all the rest of my life.

Grief, in the face of a giant like that, was not noble. It was shameful; as though I regretted the bargain I had made with life. I had no right to put such shame on my dear son's shining memory. Why did I do it?

Then why should I feel cheated because I had known love "for only 21 years"? To have known love at all was such a great privilege that I should have been willing to walk proudly all the rest of my life.

Grief is the enemy of all power or ability. He is not depressed as is the neurasthenic, or listless.

Give him a good part, and he will give you a good show.

The success of the treatment of hysterics depends partly on the severity of the case. They can nearly all be cleared up by psychological treatment and some of them stay so, but the severe ones almost always relapse.

It is a mistake to suppose that the hysterics are lacking in brain power or ability. He is not depressed as is the neurasthenic, or listless.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

MRS. LINCOLN'S CONFEDERATE SACRIFICE—Mrs. Lincoln's four brothers and four brothers-in-law fought in the ranks of the Confederacy against the North which was headed by their illustrious relative. The brothers were George, Samuel, David and Alexander Todd. The brothers-in-law married to Mrs. Lincoln's sisters were Helm, White, Dawson and Herr. Sam Todd died in the battle of Shiloh; David Todd was fatally wounded at the battle of Vicksburg; Alexander Todd was killed at Baton Rouge, La., and General Ben Helm fell at Chickamauga. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Helm came North to live in the White House. Mrs. Lincoln's Southern connections were the subject of Northern animosity during the Civil War.

Cocoanut Bars
Three eggs
Two-thirds cup sugar
One teaspoon vanilla
One-half cup cocoanut
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One cup flour
One teaspoon baking powder
Beat eggs and sugar. Add rest of ingredients, mixing lightly. Pour into greased shallow pan and bake in moderate slow oven. Cut in bars while warm and roll in confectioner's sugar.

Health Salad
One and one-half cups shredded cabbage.
One cup shredded carrots.
Two tablespoons chopped onions.
One-third cup diced celery.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
Four tablespoons French dressing.
Mix cabbage and carrots, cover with water and chill two hours. Drain and add rest of ingredients. Serve.

Veils are seen, too, though these are naturally less in evidence early in the season. One of the smartest is made with a brim of shiny cream red straw and a crush woven square in front.

Rose Valois likes toques and turbans for advance season wear and shows them made of everything from a soft crushable silky straw to ribbed white satin. There are white Turkish turbans with a rolled effect about the face finished with an upstanding brush of black feathers, stocking cap toques made of black silky straw and black straw toques with two red birds of paradise sweeping upward from each side.

A number follow the flower vogue by thrusting a cluster of gardenias to one side to nestle against the ear.

Toes are seen, too, though on toques they film the eyes and nose, again on sailors they are worn extending three inches beyond the edge of the hat.

Cheese is served with the meal, cut in bars while warm and roll in confectioner's sugar.

Desertion

By Grace Shaver

EVERYBODY in our little world knew that Harry McElveen was sick with love for another girl. And that he had left me for her.

Yet one afternoon he walked again into our living room. I was unusually alone at that time of day. Harry was a little wilder of eye and his black curly hair was a little more ruffled than usual.

"You do love me, don't you, Nellie?"

I said nothing but stared somberly at him.

"Oh, say you do! I cannot live without your comfort. Karen is becoming married today! I shall go mad, Nellie, if you do not put your arms around me and let me dream that you are she."

He was a pitiful picture of hopelessness. I went over and put my hand on his head and he threw a convulsive arm about me and clasped me to him. I was as big a fool as he. Even as he loved Karen I loved him; would keep him at any price.

Even as a bride I never dared to whisper, "Do you love me?" Well enough I knew that I was but the symbol of his love for another. Did my husband warm to me with extra affection, I told myself instantly, "He is dreaming I am Karen!"

He ceased to rave about Karen as he had done when I first knew him, and I felt that he made honest effort not to speak of her who was ever in his thoughts. Gradually I felt myself secure in his life. I had become a habit! And so we came down to middle age together.

It was Harry learned that Karen's husband had deserted her that the sword fell.

"I must go at once to the poor girl," he said. "You see, dear, she could never have really loved such a man!"

"You—you are deserting me for this woman whom you have not seen or heard from in long years, Harry?" I asked.

"Why, of course, Nellie," he explained in honest astonishment that I should ask. "That was our bargain from the first."

"And will you bring her here?" I asked, beginning to sense humor in the situation.

He utterly failed to see the absurdity of the sarcasm. He replied in all seriousness, "No, I shall take her away where neither of us is known. Where we can begin our broken lives over again."

"What about her three children?" I inquired slyly.

"His children," he answered madly.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

—Where they have all been reared on much the same foods it is probably mostly due to heredity. By using a certain chemical scientists found that to 40 per cent of people it tasted bitter, but to others it was tasteless. It tastes to me like quinine. Dr. L. H. Snyder found among 100 families that in nine of them neither parents nor children could taste it. Dr. Blakeslee discovered this characteristic runs in families for many other tastes and odors. He has suggested that this characteristic might be used to identify the parentage of a child where it was often used, as the blood groups are now often used.

—Not if they meet the situation as the anonymous writer "Mary" does in a stimulating article in the Atlantic Monthly, which bears every mark of being a real experience. She called the children around her and took them into her complete confidence; got down the heroic sacrifices and hardships their ancestors had borne bravely. She showed them that after finding their jobs, they must develop a self-sufficient, self-sustaining life among themselves, creating their own entertainment to take the place of radio, bridge, etc. This woman thinks they are richer now with a bare living than they were with all their money. Here is a lesson for us all.

—Men as a rule are more self-controlled in a business office than women. You probably never saw a business executive break down and cry when he made a big blunder or was called down by his superior, but well, I have heard of men who had heard of other men who said they had seen women do this.
